School Till 20 —Shrum

VANCOUVER (CP)—Dr. Gordon Shrum proposed Tuesday compulsory education should be extended to the age of 20 for boys and 18 for girls to prevent unemployment in Canada.

Dr. Shrum, chancellor of Simon Fraser University, told a service club other measures also should be taken.

MARRIAGE FEE

He suggested that since unemployment was highest among the under-20 group — those without sufficient education — the government might impose a $200 fee for a marriage licence for those under 20 who wish to leave school and marry.

Another method would be to force youths under 20 to continue training unless they can produce a certificate from a psychologist proving them unfit for further training.

Spies Jailed

KARLSRUHE, West Germany (AP)—The federal supreme court Tuesday sentenced former West German intelligence official Heinz Felle, 45, to 14 years at hard labor for spying for Russia. Co-defendant Hans Clemens, 56, drew three years and Hans Tiebel, 53, three years.

In Berlin, the East German supreme court sentenced Hans Globke, 64, Chancellor Adenauer's chief aide, to life at hard labor in absentia—for war crimes.

The men were identified only as Nasser and Naef.

IN ZURICH

Police said July 9 they had arrested in Zurich two citizens in possession of classified information.

The former employees of a motor, turbine and pump firm, entered on their own initiative into contact with Israeli intelligence to which they delivered reports on the firm.

JAIL TERM

Two alleged Israeli agents, Josef Ben Gal, 33, an Israeli civil servant, and Otto Jokile, 41, an Austrian nuclear scientist, were sentenced in June to two months' jail for espionage—putting pressure on the family of a West German scientist working on Egyptian rocket projects to force him to quit his job.

Where's The Cash?

WINDSOR, Ont. (UPI)—A mail envelope containing $2,700 disappeared Tuesday when an accountant on her way to deposit the money in a bank fainted on a downtown street.

Police said several persons gathered around Mrs. Theresa Piper, 42, accountant for an army surplus store.

Her first comment when she revived several minutes later was: "Where's the deposit?" A search failed to turn up the envelope. Police are questioning those in the area when Mrs. Piper collapsed.

Drowned Sailors Robbed?

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec Provincial Police are investigating the possibility money was stolen from the pockets of Chinese seamen who drowned in the weekend Triton sinking in the St. Lawrence River.

Charles Edward Cantin, deputy attorney-general, said Tuesday it appears that at least two of the dead seamen were robbed.

Mr. Cantin said employees at the provincial morgue here, where an inquest was held Sunday to identify the victims, noticed that the pockets of two of the seamen were turned out.

LARGE AMOUNTS

Chinese seamen often carry large amounts of money while at sea, an official said.

One of the dead Chinese was found with $1,115 in United States money in his pocket, a morgue official said.

FIREMEN SCALE BLUFF SAVE BOY

By JACK FRY

Rescuers climbed 1,400-foot-high Mt. Finlayson near Goldstream Park Tuesday to bring down an 11-year-old city youth who fell 20 feet down a rock bluff near the crest.

James Cowie, son of Sgt. Ldr. and Mrs. M. J. Cowie, 1228 McKenzie Street, suffered cuts to the scalp and possible injury to the collarbone but was reported in satisfactory condition at St. Joseph's Hospital at press time.

He was conscious throughout his ordeal. He managed a smile and told a reporter "I feel fine," as he was being carried down the mountainside on a stretcher.

SECOND FALL

Yesterday's fall was the second in just over three months at Mt. Finlayson.

A navy helicopter and the Langford volunteer fire department joined forces on April 15 to rescue Kenneth Peach, 13, 1118 Hillside, who plunged 30 feet down the sheer west face of the mountain.

A narrow ledge stopped Cowie's rolling fall down the rock bluff after he apparently lost his footing on the trail.

HEART SURGERY

The youth had undergone open heart surgery two or three years ago but it was not known whether this had any bearing on the mountain mishap.

James Cowie was one of 27 members of the junior branch of the Victoria Natural History Society who are camping in tents this week in Goldstream Park.

He and a number of other youngsters from the group had gone on a mountain climbing expedition led by prominent Victoria naturalist Freeman King.

STARTING DOWN

"We had been to the top and were starting down. We had gone about 200 feet when he slid on the face of a rock and fell 10 to 15 feet," said Mr. King.

Langford firemen said they thought the fall had been at least 20 feet.

"We moved him about 30 yards but because of his heart condition I thought it would be better to call for the firemen," Mr. King said.

RELAY MESSAGE

Mark Dames, a member of the party, was sent down the mountain as a runner to flag down a car and ask the driver to relay the message to the fire department.

Within minutes, eight men from the Langford volunteer fire department, with an ambulance, special rescue truck and chief's truck wheeled across the rustic wooden bridge towards the base of the Mt. Finlayson trail.

They clawed their way up the muddy, slippery trail to the Cowie boy, eased him gently into the portable stretcher and started the hazardous trek downhill.

BOUGH GOING

The going was so rough in some spots that a rope tied to the stretcher was wrapped around tree trunks and paid off slowly as the stretcher bearers inched their way towards firmer ground.

"If I was 20 years younger, I'd have rigged a sling and brought him down myself," said the 73-year-old naturalist who has scaled Mt. Finlayson scores of times in his lifetime.

"I would like to express my thanks for the splendid job and manner in which the Langford fire brigade came in and helped," said Mr. King.

Union Hits Back

MONTREAL (CP)—The Seafarers International Union (Ind.) demanded Tuesday that the federal government investigate the hearings of the Norris commission on maritime labor strife.

In a 10-page statement, the SIU accused Mr. Justice T. G. Norris of violating the principles of justice during his eight-month investigation of violence and shipping disruptions on the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence Seaway.

FIRST REACTION

It was the first SIU reaction to the Norris report, made public more than a week ago, which roundly condemned the actions of the SIU, and particularly Canadian President Hal C. Banks.

Mr. Justice Norris' chief recommendation was for a government trusteeship to take over management of marine unions until peace can be assured.

TOTALITARIAN

"The recommendations," the SIU statement said, "with their alien philosophies, their provisions for arbitrary and totalitarian rule bear out, unfortunately, our anticipation.

"They constitute a serious threat to the liberty and economic well-being of Canadian citizens."

Liaison Denied By Fairbanks

NEW YORK (UPI)—Actor Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., admitted through a spokesman here Tuesday he knew British playgirls Christine Keeler and Marilyn (Mandy) Rice-Davies, but claimed his relationship with them was "innocuous."

Fairbanks issued the statement through a spokesman in New York because British law prevented him from speaking out in London.

Miss Rice-Davies put the finger on Fairbanks at the vice trial of society osteopath Dr. Stephen Ward when she said she had been intimate with the actor, now a millionaire businessman.

SHOCKED

Through a spokesman, Fairbanks stated: "I was shocked to hear a report about what I had remembered as a perfectly innocuous acquaintance."

"My meeting with both Miss Keeler and Miss Rice-Davies occurred as a result of their wanting an opportunity in films in which, as I was no longer producing, I could not really assist them. I suggested agents and others they might contact."

NOT INVOLVED

"Whereas I at no time was involved in the matter stated in court, and under English law I am prevented from making a statement in London until after the case is completed, I can say I am not only astonished at the statement, but vigorously deny it."

Ward Trial Explosive

I Hope He'll Be Acquitted—Mandy

By JOSEPH MACSWEN

LONDON (CP) — Marilyn (Mandy) Rice-Davies, bejewelled lass from the English Midlands, said in matter-of-fact tones Tuesday her lovers have included the third Viscount Astor and actor Douglas Fairbanks Jr.

The 19-year-old blonde, jaunty in a pink rose-petal hat and a grey wrapover dress, testified at the explosive vice trial of society osteopath Dr. Stephen Ward, 50.

"I hope he'll be acquitted," said the prosecution witness who was accused by defence counsel of trying to "out-Christie Christine" — Christine Keeler, whose sex affairs caused the resignation of John Profumo as war minister and shook the British government.

Sobs, surly crowds—and some of the hottest temperatures of the summer—featured proceedings at the Old Bailey Court. Two blondes, a brunette, a brown-haired girl and a redhead trooped to the witness box to tell of their relations with Ward.

Mr. Justice A. P. Marshall adjourned the hearing until today after prosecutor Mervyn Griffith-Jones angrily declared that one of his witnesses had turned hostile. That witness was red-haired

Margaret (Ronna) Ricardo, an admitted prostitute, who testified she recognized a two-way mirror setup in an apartment occupied by Ward because she herself earlier owned such a device.

But — in a voice inaudible most of the time — Miss Ricardo repudiated other statements made for a lower court earlier and Mr. Justice Marshall advised her to consider her position carefully before the hearing resumes today.

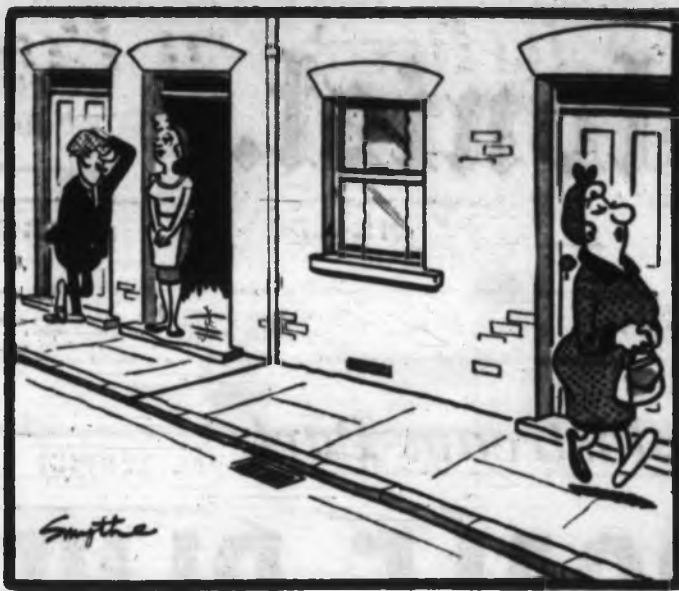

Easily the sensation of the day was the appearance of Miss Rice-Davies, who underwent more than two hours of questioning — despite an occasional tear — with apparent aplomb, an ordeal that left Miss Keeler wilted when the trial opened Monday.

She said she deeply loved

Eclipse Reaction

Boys' Eyes Damaged

Saturday's solar eclipse left three reported cases of eye damage in its path across Nova Scotia. It was learned here Tuesday.

Dr. W. M. Phinney of Yarmouth said a nine-year-old boy has a severe burn badly affecting both his eyes, and two other boys, ages seven and 10, have partial damage to their eyes.

Cecil Larue, 10, of North Bay may be Ontario's first known victim of the eclipse. He watched it for "five minutes" through an exposed piece of film.

Mrs. Theresa Larue, the boy's mother, said Monday: "My son can tell brightness from darkness and that's all." His eye had a glassy look—"as if it had a grey coating over it."

Meanwhile, it was reported the eclipse was seen from two other points in Greater Victoria—Signal Hill in Esquimalt and the Dallas Road waterfront.

Two tourists from Hamilton, Ont., Mrs. John Donaldson and her son Douglas Guernsey were on the waterfront gathering shells when Douglas saw the sun reflected in a pool of water in some rocks.

"The clouds broke about 1:15 p.m. and we watched the eclipse for about three-quarters of an hour," Mrs. Donaldson said.

The eclipse was not only seen from Esquimalt's Signal Hill by 14-year-old John Connolly, 429 Moresby; he also photographed it.

Using a twin-lens camera without a filter he got two pictures showing the sun slightly diffused through cloud. Both show the crescent shape of the partial eclipse seen in Victoria.

slum-housing racketeer Peter Rachman, with whom she lived before his death last November. She also told of affairs with Lord Astor, 56; Fairbanks, 53; an unidentified Indian doctor, a Persian and another boy friend, Rachman, with whom she lived.

When defence counsel James Burge said Mandy used Fairbanks' name merely to make a sensation, she replied: "No, because I don't like him. Several times I called someone else and you say I have to mention his name."

First witness was Sally Joan Norrie, 22, and she was followed by a bouffant-blond, 23-year-old identified only as "Miss R." Both said they had "voluntarily" had affairs with Ward, culminating in his cottage at Astor's Cliveden estate.

Still another 22-year-old, Indian-born "Miss X," said she had repulsed an invitation by Ward to "perform" before the two-way mirror in his London flat.

Temperatures were getting short in the stuffy courtroom at the end of the day while outside hundreds of the curious waited for a glimpse of the witnesses. Miss Rice-Davies, sauntering toward her taxi while the crowd pressed in, was hissed and booed, particularly by women.

Ward, an artist who attended the opening of an exhibition of his works here Monday night, has pleaded not guilty to five charges covering living wholly or in part on the earnings of prostitution since 1961 and trying to procure two girls under 21 for unlawful sex.

The committee dealt four more blows to the bill by bringing total tentative cuts there for to $377,000,000. Having further change before a final vote, the Senate bill stands at $4,164,000,000, compared with Kennedy's request for $4,325,000,000.

Slain Girl's Mother Sues for Millions

DETROIT — The mother of slain Negro Cynthia Scott has filed a $5,000,000 suit against the city of Detroit and the policeman who shot Miss Scott.

Mrs. Lillian Scott's suit, accused Patrolman Theodore Spicher of acting "with evil and criminal design . . . not in pursuance of any lawful end, but with the evident assurance that he could escape punishment by reason of his office as a policeman."

Spicher said he shot Miss Scott when she slashed him while he was attempting to arrest her on a soliciting charge July 5.

OTTAWA — Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker is unlikely to accept as a gift the drawing of Dr. Stephen Ward, London osteopath presently on charge in Britain's sex and security scandal, did of him two years ago. J. Ross Henderson bought the drawing at Ward's London exhibition, for about $750 and said he would give it to his friend, Mr. Diefenbaker if he wanted it. An Ottawa spokesman said that Ward was just a bit too notorious for Diefenbaker to accept the gift—even if he wanted it.

VANCOUVER — "It was enough to make me swear off beer for life," So says Vancouver reporter Nat Cole, who avows he'd had a few sips of brew before he detected an off-color taste.

On closer inspection he discovered a dead mouse on the bottom of the bottle. The brewery offered an apology but couldn't explain how the mouse escaped detection on its production line.

LONDON — Buckingham Palace garden was jammed with 7,000 guests when Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip joined them at a garden party Tuesday — London's hottest day of the year. ## Egyptian, Israeli Jets Both Claiming Victory

CAIRO (Reuters) — Egyptian and Israeli jet fighter planes exchanged gunfire Tuesday while Egypt was celebrating the 11th anniversary of King Farouk's downfall with a big military parade.

Egypt claimed its fighters shot down an Israeli plane which tried to violate Egyptian air space by entering the Egyptian-held Sinai desert—the first such incident reported for several months.

But an Israeli army spokesman in Tel Aviv denied the Israeli plane was shot down and gave a different version of the clash.

He said two Egyptian MIG-17 fighters penetrated Israeli air space Tuesday morning over the western Negev desert. One Egyptian plane was hit and the other fled while all four Israeli planes returned safely, he added.

During the military parade here, new ground-to-air rockets were displayed and thousands of cheering Egyptians were told their engineers have succeeded in building the first Arab-made submarine.

Marshal Abdel Hakim Amer, deputy supreme commander of the Egyptian armed forces, said the new submarine would be tested soon.

(Egypt was known to have two submarines, both Soviet-built.)

Debate Opens On Thorny Building Tax

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons formally approved budget changes affecting the income tax Tuesday, then turned to the controversial sales tax on building materials and production machinery.

Finance Minister Gordon said the tax "could not be expected to be popular" but he was still convinced it was less harmful to the economy than the other revenue alternatives.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissues.

A renowned research institution has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved... actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among them case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.
In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Another Image Gone

OUR AMERICAN cousins have finally learned the truth about our Mounties. And it fell to no less a person than Canada's top policeman, Commissioner C. W. Harverson of the RCMP, to set the record straight for them.

With brutal frankness he has disabused them of the romantic idea that all our Mounties ride "gorgeously across the Prairies in their red coats to the tune of Rose Marie."

Not content with that he also disclosed that the motto of the force is not "We Always Get Our Man" but simply: "Maintain the Right."

Of course, we Canadians knew all this long ago, but most of us were loath to admit it to our southern neighbors. After all why shouldn't we bask in the glamour of Hollywood ideal if that was how our friends across the border wanted it?

If the truth were admitted we even did our bit to add to the mythical romanticism of the Mounties from time to time. It is not so long ago, for instance, that the federal government authorized an RCMP escort for Canada's reigning beauty queen on her visit to Atlantic City to compete in the international contest.

Nor can it be forgotten that another "Miss Canada" appeared in a brief and somewhat revealing RCMP-type uniform which was described as Canada's national costume.

Added to this it will be remembered that for years the Canadian Tourist Bureau in Ottawa used a photograph of a strapping young RCMP constable in full dress uniform in all its tourist advertisements and publicity material in order to entice more visitors to the dominion.

And now after ages spent in building up this image, Commissioner Harverson has, in one brief interview in Washington, torn it down.

From now on our American friends will have the realization forced upon them that the RCMP, far from being the enchanting and colorful—and slightly pot-bellied—group depicted by Nelson Eddy, is nothing more than a highly efficient and well-trained national police force with which we Canadians are well satisfied.

Open Doors

SAANICH council members have justification for being irritated by the failure of provincial cabinet ministers to reply directly to municipal letters seeking information on a variety of matters of local interest and importance. The councillors should hardly be surprised, however, and perhaps they are not. They themselves must often have observed the political folly of making apparent commitments in advance of firm decisions, and in almost every situation there are breezes to be tested and balloons to be sent up, boldly or discreetly as the case may be.

Still one would have thought that all four of the lieutenants of Premier Bennett whom the council wants to confront—on topics including sewage problems, social service costs, highway construction plans, the provision of court facilities and the possibility of police forces being amalgamated—had been in office long enough to have mastered the art of the friendly, sincere and completely unambiguous communication, to be cynical about it.

Perhaps cabinet members feel they would be overburdened if they answered every letter that came in from every municipality rather than having deputies reply to some of them and seemingly just to ignore others. But in the final result, following this course, they can only appear discourteous and unbecomingly arrogant.

They will have only themselves to blame now in any event that Saanich council wants to meet and question them face to face, testing their genial assurances that their doors are always open. But perhaps, of course, the councillors will find the ministers mean not their office doors, but their escape hatches.

How Not to Win

THERE is a well-known maxim to the effect that "one catches more flies with honey than with vinegar."

If not entirely applicable this in effect has been the reply of the UBC's board of governors to Mr. Ray Perrault's assertion that by not assailing the Bennett regime verbally they were protecting a government unresponsive to their monetary needs.

The provincial Liberal leader in particular criticized the use by the governors of the word "amicable" in describing talks that led to a supplementary grant.

No doubt the UBC doesn't think the grant comes up to expectations but there will always be the hope that more will be forthcoming, and obviously the chances of this are much more favorable if the governors swallow any disappointment they may feel and keep their approaches on a friendly footing.

They have to be realistic, as the chairman says, and that realism no doubt appreciates that a government seldom can give everyone as much financial assistance as they would like.

A political leader, especially one on the outside looking in and thus frustrated by being simply in opposition, can afford the opposite tack. He has nothing to lose even if he has little to gain, and patently Mr. Perrault sees his role as only that of a critic.

Actually if he is concerned about UBC he could aid the governors in their requests instead of assailing them for diplomatic acceptance of what they do manage to secure. He could in short take a leaf from the governors' book.

Or, even, attack the government for the size of the grant, not the recipients because they are polite.

Barnyard Calls

MR. GREENE: Mr. Chairman, in so far as the point of order is concerned—I can hear catcalls from across the way—

An hon. Member: That is your side that is giving them.

Mr. Greene:—but this is just what you expect from a barnyard, and that is what we generally hear. I would point out, Mr. Chairman, in so far as this point of order is concerned—

An hon. Member: Smart alec freshman.

Mr. Greene: Well, it is better to be a smart alec freshman than a tired old campaigner.

"No Lady, I don't know how you're to know I'm not a spy—you'll just have to take my word for it."

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes, and ships, and scaling wox..."

By TOM TAYLOR

If the spirits of departed heroes surround statues lifted in their honor they must, in some instances, deplore the predilection for setting them so high in the air as to be noticed nearly only at the risk of a crick of the neck.

Not their own necks, of course, but of those who might pause to wonder who they are.

Our Captain Vancouver, for instance, set no close to the path of sputniks that a stranger can only guess whether he is a man or some other emblem of local repute. Especially when the sun glints on his golden coat and the eye is dazzled by his high-stained eminence.

I thought of this when looking at a published picture of William Penn, aloft in lonely majesty above the "great towns" he laid out away back in 1682. The eclipse which aroused so much curiosity the other day eclipsed him as no one in his lifetime had been able to do, casting him in shadow.

William is not alone, apart from Vancouver, in being hoisted far into the air. The Old World is replete with statues, and some of them enjoy the rarified purity of high altitude. In the town that had the honor of giving me birth for example, there is a whole squareful of statues to famous beings, and one of them, the centrepiece, ensures that Sir Walter Scott will be unapproachable on his lonely column.

There is Nelson, too, as most of you know, who also has a pinnacle from which to look down on the midge of the pavements, safe thereby from vandals but at the mercy of Trafalgar Square's celebrated pigeons. Our pigeons seem to prefer the downtown streets, but what the gulls do to Captain Vancouver only he could tell us.

This is a callous drawback to setting famous men apart forlorn and separate from the multitudes, and unfortunately birds cannot read and thus shower their favors indiscriminately.

We do give our gallant captain a fresh coat of paint once in a long while, but if he were closer to our message we could take better care of him.

Once I went to pay him a call, a tortuous journey up twisting stairs and attic-like surroundings guaranteed to keep anyone away, but ended only on the platform beneath him. This is as close as is permissible. I couldn't verify how he was getting along, although I hope he was aware of my homage.

It's not the fashion here to pay our respects via the statue route and except for two castings in wall niches of the Parliament Buildings—Douglas and Baillie-Begbie—only one real statue apart from the man who gave this island its name, enlivens the local scene, that of Queen Victoria.

Perhaps it is time she had a male counterpart, on near ground level.

I recommend to the city, or perhaps with more hope of success the Capital District Improvement Commission, the idea of erecting a statue of Sir James Douglas in substitution for the paltry stone slab which marks Clover Point as his landing place and thus the birth of this fair city.

Only, assuming for a moment that such a monument is ever contemplated, probably a large assumption, let him be kept nearer our embrace. Then he won't be eclipsed either by the sun or lack of attention—and thus memory—and we can keep a better eye on the birds.

Leaders have sounded alike.

Each has been contemptuous, righteously indignant and virtuous in his denunciations of the government's reluctance to fully answer every last question.

The way they have changed their outlooks and attitudes, as all prime ministers and opposition leaders have when their jobs, in turn, have been interchangeable, is at once pathetic and comical.

Piously, all opposition leaders ask questions in the public interest, and "load" them with political fishhooks and boobytraps in the everlasting hope of catching prime ministers in embarrassing inept answers.

And just as righteously, prime ministers duck and dodge, seeking, also in the public interest, to evade the questions.

Historically, Liberal through Conservative through Liberal governments, the administration, like a fox running before the hounds, seeks to hole up with the claim that the opposition is simply wasting Parliament's time and obstructing the nation's business in frittering away the first 90 minutes or two hours of every working day in the Commons with useless questions instead of getting on with the legislation.

But don't you believe a word of it.

That pious claim, made alike by every Liberal and Conservative government back for as long as any Parliament Hill veteran cares to admit remembering, is bunk.

The daily question period is when Parliament, in its day-to-day performance, does the best work.

It's the only time that the Forgiven Man, the lowly taxpayer, can get AT the government.

You've got a complaint? Suffered a bureaucratic injustice? Know of some governmental abuse?

Chances are you'll find any senior federal civil servant vastly disinterested. Like cabinet ministers, they're invariably too busy, worried and harassed with their own troubles to bother.

So you call, or write your nearest opposition member of Parliament and tell him all about it. Or your information, protest, complaint, or disclosure finds its way into your newspaper.

Either way, if you really have anything—and often when you haven't—the opposition MP on the opening "Orders of the Day," when questions are fired at the cabinet, can ask about it.

And you or your idea get to be heard in Parliament.

So don't let them kid you about the daily Question Period being a waste of time and a stumbling block in the uncertain path of Parliamentary progress.

Look at the "heroes" of this session.

They're the men who asked the questions that really counted.

There was the razor-minded New Democrat Douglas Fisher from the Lakehead who flushed the "Bay Street budget ghost" writers from cover in Finance Minister Walter Gordon's office.

Then there was that old Parliamentary fox, NDP Whip Stanley Knowles, who twisted the finance minister's arm, wringing from him the confession that the "ghost writers" had been told.

And both men as Opposition

Just Another Promise

YOUR editorial, "A Job for David," was well put and very timely. When I came to Canada just 37 years ago, I was surprised at the peculiar meaning attached to the word "politician," but not any more. During those years I have, alas, learned the reason why.

With many other old-age pensioners, I took in all good faith Capt. Groves' pre-election statement that the Liberals would immediately raise the pension by $13 per month, and most of them voted for him. It has turned out to be just another vote-catching promise, as usual. How many more of the Liberals' acts are going to turn out like the post and the thimble—now you see it, now you don't?

Here's hoping Capt. Groves can get the health minister to change his mind. Capt. Groves could also ask Premier Bennett if he could let loose some of his enormous surplus for use of old-age pensioners who are, according to pre-election speeches, "the sturdy pioneers who built up—etc." OAP

Cruel Experiments

It was good to read in your paper that two well-known citizens of Victoria were expressing the views, which so many of us can endorse, with regard to cruel experiments on living animals, described in your paper of July 18.

There is far, far too much of this going on at present, and rapidly increasing even in our schools.

No wonder there is so much juvenile delinquency when children and young people are taught that sadistic treatment of living animals in experiments is only a "praiseworthy" interest in science!

It is time that something

Arms Spending

Your correspondent from Rupert Street seems to have some difficulty in reconciling "the colossal sums we are spending on armaments" with Christianity and to bolster his argument against this spending, he like so many others quotes certain passages from the Scriptures.

I agree with him entirely when he says the world is mad but can we not love our enemies, can we not do good to them that hate us, can we not pray for them that despitefully use us and persecute us? And at the same time arm ourselves?

It seems to me that the history of the world in 1914 and 1939 might have been somewhat different if we had taken His words to heart when He said, "A strong man armed keepeth his house." The same Teacher even warned his disciples in sending them out into the world to arm themselves with a sword. (Luke 22:36.)

Today In History

By The Canadian Press

The bloodiest battle of the war of 1812 was fought 149 years ago today—in 1814—at Lundy's Lane, Ont. Although neither side could claim victory, the battle checked the advance of the invading American forces into Canada and forced their withdrawal to Fort Erie.

Atlantic Unity

So close—and yet so far. That's how the verdict must rest on the concept of an Atlantic community of nations.

Not so long ago, it was a live concept. The eyes of the world were on Britain seeking to enter the Common Market.

More recently, President Kennedy has been reaffirming the American presence in Europe.

But the road to unity is proving long and hard. Today the concept of Atlantic community is more or less back in cold storage. Instead, much of the debate between Europe and North America centres on trade disputes.

It's a sad commentary on the decline of the Atlantic ideal that it has resolved into disputes on petty issues. Yet the issues are far from trivial. It's clear, for instance, that what both Canada and the U.S. are complaining about is a trend to self-sufficiency in the Common Market that endangers the trade interests of both countries.

Self-sufficiency in economic terms, it's feared, could prove to be the first step towards self-sufficiency in political terms.

The agricultural issue itself defies all economic logic. Europe is a major importer of foodstuffs. It's in its benefit to import cheap food. Yet it's deliberately encouraging high-cost production by raising price supports.

Equally absurd is the fact that encouraging high-cost production will only result in keeping people on the farms at a time when many of the Common Market countries are short of workers to keep the wheels of industry turning. (Which is one reason why they have had to import workers from countries like Spain and Greece.)

No one suggests that an economic transition of this kind can be accomplished without some cost and hardship. The U.S. had its experience of this in the 1910s and 1920s, Canada has gone through much the same phase since the Second World War.

But there is no future for Europe in trying to turn the clock back. And both Canada and the U.S. are right to press Europe to look outwards and behave like an equal partner—if it wants to be treated like one.

In Italy

Banana Scandal

NINETTA JUCKER from Rome

SINCE childhood most Italians have taken for granted that salt, tobacco and bananas are sold by special state concession. The salt monopoly is a relic of the Middle Ages. The tobacco monopoly was brought in by the Piedmontese. The state monopoly of bananas is more recent. It was introduced during Fascism but has its historical raison d'être in the occupation of Italian Somaliland.

Visitors often express surprise at having to buy salt from the tobaccoist and not a, the grocer's, but probably few have stopped to wonder why the small, brown, withered-looking objects that Italians accept as bananas and for which they pay high prices should be sold on barrows by traders who seem to have no other produce.

The salt and tobacco monopolies survived the war without discussion and were at once incorporated in the Italian Republic, but the banana monopoly was questioned as soon as Italians were able to compare prices. Bills to abolish it were presented from time to time, and when Italy's mandate over Somalia terminated, many supposed that the Azienda Monopolo Banane would be wound up. Nothing of the sort happened, and Italians assumed with a shrug that private interests had formed a pressure group.

Everything might have continued as before had it not been for an incident which occurred on March 26 this year. Banana licences are auctioned yearly and bidders have to have to guess, to the nearest centesimo, the price at which the AMB intends to put the fruit on sale in the coming year. Those tenders nearest the official (secret) price get the concessions to sell bananas wholesale.

On March 26, one hundred and six incredibly accurate tenders were received, which caused the authorities to look into the matter. They found that all the successful tenders had come in identical envelopes addressed by the same hand. The hand belonged to an elderly gentleman, Ennio Umberto Rossi, who for 15 years had been secretary of the Wholesale Banana Dealers Association.

The banana monopoly agency, which grants the concessions, is a branch of the finance ministry, and while the minister was congratulating the successful bidders on their splendid refrigerators and efficient sales organization, a magistrate was filing 106 summonses for "disturbance of public auctions," "violation of official secrets" and "continuous fraud."

The merchants protested that they had left it all to Signor Rossi in whose good faith they had every confidence. The magistrate, however, had unearthed the minutes of a board meeting of the Wholesale Banana Dealers Association at which it was decided to allocate a sum "to oil the wheels." This, the merchants explained, meant they had decided to finance a political party to make sure they were treated with "understanding" should another bill to abolish the monopoly come before the new Parliament. An official has nonetheless been arrested. He is Signor Franco Bartoli Avveduto, president of the banana monopoly agency and an official of the ministry of finance.

The Packback

By GREGORY CLARK

On a recent motor trip, I had to spend three hours loafing around the repair garage of a service station while the trouble with my transmission was attended to. Besides the main-garage, who did little work other than diagnose and direct and collect the money, there were five men working in the place.

It was only after I had been watching the various activities of the garage for more than an hour that I was suddenly struck by the fact that all five men were middle-aged. In fact, one of them was elderly.

When the manager came and offered me a cup of coffee from his thermos, I broached the subject.

"I wouldn't have any young fellows around here," he informed me, "if they paid me. I've tried them for 20 years; and every year the crop grows worse. They are irresponsible, impudent, rude to me and to the public. They are unreliable in their work, and unreliable about turning up for work, or working a little overtime. Give me the middle-aged and older men. I've got the best service garage for 40 miles in all directions from here."

Another Offer for February September Bout 'If Price Right'

By JACK HAND

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Sonny Liston indicated Tuesday that he might not fight Cassius Clay in September as proposed, but left all plans dependent upon one basic premise—"If the price is right."

The 30-year-old champ was in good humor as he met newsmen at his hotel headquarters to discuss his future and his first round knockout of Floyd Patterson in two minutes and 10 seconds Monday night.

At the same time, Patterson was flying back to New York, determined to keep on fighting.

George Parnassus, Los Angeles promoter, offered a guarantee of $2,750,000 to the Liston promotional group for a Liston-Clay bout in the Las Vegas Coliseum in February.

Jack Nelson, Sonny's advisor, said the bout would be held in a state where Liston could be his own promoter. He said Liston is president of Intercontinental Promotions, Inc., of which Liston's brothers, Jim and Bob, are officials, as well as Liston's lawyer, Sal Aviana. Liston said he holds no stock.

TALK WITH CLAY
Liston said negotiations would continue with Clay and he hopes to announce a definite date and date within a week or 10 days. It has been reported that Sept.

30 in Philadelphia Stadium is the target. Clay has been offered 20 per cent.

However, Liston did not appear too anxious to fight again in two months.

"I would say September is pretty fast," Liston replied to a question about his plans. "But if the price is right I'll fight today. It is possible there will be no fight in September. It's like Jack says, if he can show me a way to meet the tax problems, I'd like to fight three times a year."

When Teddy Brenner, Madison Square Garden matchmaker, asked Liston if he would appear on home television for the Garden.

Liston said "if the price is right I'd fight anywhere, TV or no TV, even if nobody sees me but the promoter."

Nelson kept insisting that the door was wide open for bids on the ancillary rights for closed circuit and included Sports Vision, the firm that handled Monday's theatre television, as a possibility.

The draw:

12:00—R. Sherman vs. W. Herrick; C. Allen vs. M. Diamond; P. Warrick vs. P. Seymour; J. Wolfson vs. R. Balon; Scott vs. E. Prosser; W. Hodges vs. C. Enos; J. Walton vs. J. Neer.

2:00—P. Smith vs. R. Stiles and Neer vs. Skelton and Delgado; P. Phipps vs. R. Haddock; R. Neer vs. Curran.

Rider Rookie Stars

OTTAWA (UPI)—Tommy Lee, an Hawaiian-born quarterback from tiny Willamette University in Oregon, practically clinched a job Tuesday night by leading Ottawa Rough Riders to a 31-29 win over Winnipeg Blue Bombers in an exhibition Canadian football game played before 8,000 fans.

Lee banged his way six yards for the winning touchdown with just over three minutes left in the game, tossed a 25-yard scoring pass to import-end George Bell and played a strong game as the deep back in Ottawa's defensive alignment.

It was a performance which left Lee looming as the Riders' No. 2 quarterback, behind Canadian Russ Jackson, who scored in the first quarter on a five-yard run and then tossed a scoring pass to Whit Tucker in the last second of second quarter.

Play continued in the usual pattern last night in the Inter-City Lacrosse League's two-division setup as Victoria Shamrocks took an 8-5 licking from the league-leaders in Vancouver.

Twelve games remain to be played, and things look bad in eight of them for the trailing island clubs as Vancouver and New Westminster fight it out for the league championship.

Vancouver has one game left with the Shamrocks, here tonight, plus two with Nanaimo. New Westminster plays the Shamrocks three times and Nanaimo twice and unless there is an unexpected pattern change, the title won't be decided until the last week of the schedule, when the leaders meet in a home-and-home series.

Last night's win gave Vancouver a five-point bulge but New Westminster has those two games in hand, and should start that final series only one point behind. But a slip for either club against the island entries could alter matters considerably.

New Westminster	28	18	7	0	.688

Last night's score: VICTORIA 8 at Vancouver 6.

Because of this, Vancouver should be at full strength for tonight's game. The Shamrocks will probably be without Ed Kowalyk and may again be short as many as three regulars.

Kowalyk, Jack Showers and Tom Collett were not there last night and on Saturday at Nanaimo, the same trio was missing along with coach Don Ashbee, Ron Jay and Jim McNeill.

Even without two of their regular defencemen the Shamrocks didn't do too badly defensively last night. They held Vancouver to three goals in the first half. The trouble was that the Shamrocks didn't get any.

Losers finally scored twice in the third quarter, but their defence allowed five. Three unanswered goals in the final 15 minutes only made it look closer than it was.

Bill Barbour and ex-Shamrock Tom English each scored twice for Vancouver. Sid Warwick chipped in with one goal, his 99th in ICL play, while Fred Uselman's contribution was his 499th. Gordie Gimple and Ron Parry got the other Vancouver goals.

On Prairies

Geese Increase

NEW YORK (AP)—A New York waterfowl biologist, writing from Canada's Prairie Provinces, predicts goose hunting will be better this fall than last but that duck hunting will be only slightly improved.

Charles E. Mont reports from Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta in the latest issue of Science and Mechanics magazine that there is "some slight improvement in the over-all picture" for duck hunters.

However, he adds, the Prairie Provinces, which produce more than half of North America's ducks, "have not yet recovered from the drought that has plagued them for several years."

He says the United States duck breeding grounds "seem to be better than last year."

Most says mallards and pintails, two of the most popular species, seem to be on the increase. Other dabbling ducks are just holding their own. Diving ducks, with the exception of scaup, are in short supply. Redheads and Canvasbacks still are low in numbers. Scap ducks or bluebills, because they nest farther north and have not been adversely affected by the long drought, "Most says, "Some areas, particularly state and federal refuges will have so many geese it may be a problem just to feed them."

McLarens Through In Softball Series

McLarens' were eliminated from provincial Senior "A" men's softball playdowns last night when they were blanked, 2-0, by Imperials.

It was the second defeat in as many games for McLarens' as the double-loss elimination playoff which will decide which Victoria team will play in the Island finals. They were beaten, 9-2, by Sooke in the first game on Monday evening.

Last night's result leaves Sooke and Imperials to battle it out for the Victoria spot. They play at Heywood Avenue tomorrow and Friday nights at 6:45. If a third game is needed, it will probably be played on Monday evening.

Survivor will then play against two Up-Island teams for the right to represent the Island in the B.C. finals in Vancouver early next month.

GREAT TRY
Jeff Hett made a great try to prolong things for McLarens last night but two first-inning runs, scored on a bases-loaded double by Bob Sorenson, were more than Glen Langsett needed.

Langsett was in rare form, striking out 10 and allowing but four hits. Hett gave up six hits and struck out seven, and was unbeat since his rocky start.

McLarens' 000 000-0 11 3
Jeff Hett and Jim Wilson; Glen Langsett and Bill Peterson.

MONDAY

McLarens 000 000-0 2 6 1
Glen Hutton and Rod Sullivan; Rod Turner, Jeff Hett (4) and Jim Wilson.

Allstars 12 11 107 3
Independents 10 14 117 3
Builders 9 38 389 3

Last night's score: Transport Workers 8, Independents 4.

Next game, tonight: Builders vs. Athletics, 6:15, Royal Athletic Park.

Unless there's a minor miracle, Transport Workers are going to win the Senior Amateur Baseball League pennant in a breeze.

They stretched their lead to a cool five games last night, tripping the ever-striving Independents, 6-4, in a darkness-shortened seven-inning game at Royal Athletic Park.

Transport Workers collected runs 2 to 6 with a five-run third inning. They trailed, 3-1, going into that frame.

Two runs scored on an error. Gary Lebed stole home and Keith Dugg and Cliff Kilduff each drove in one with singles.

Transport Workers 100 000-0 6 2
Independents 000 000-4 4 2
Next game, tonight: Lloyd Murphy, Keith Todd and Gerry Parson.

Stocks Still Seek a Lead

TORONTO (CP)—An uncertain stock market drifted on lower ground.

With an 18-point deficit to beat before recovery from last week's thrashing, the market reflected the need for clarification on the full-impact of the proposed U.S. interest-equalization tax.

Bank issues were lower. Toronto-Dominion at 1/2, Nova Scotia and Imperial Bank of Commerce at 1/2, and Montreal at 1/2.

Distillers Seargams fell 1/2 with Canadian Utilities and Imperial Oil at 1/2. Alberta Gas, Canada Cement, and Aluminium declined 1/2.

Down at Start

MONTREAL (CP)—The stock market was down sharply at the opening but recovered following an announcement that Canada had not agreed to cut domestic interest rates in return for certain exemptions from the proposed 15-per-cent Canadian securities.

In paper prices were irregular. Abitibi led the gains, up 1/2. B.C. Forest added 1/2 and Moore was up 1/2. International and Macmillan declined 1/2.

Cl. gained 1/2. Industrial Acceptance was up a full point and Montreal Locomotive was better by 1/2. Argus Corp. fell 1/2, Massey-Ferguson down 1/2 and CPR was off 1/2.

In western oils, Triad was the only gainer, adding eight cents. Kodak fell 15 cents.

Debits Down Again

June Dull, Banks Too

By HARRY YOUNG
Columnist Business Editor

June's indifferent weather, which reduced the tourist count in the Victoria area, is reflected in the Canadian Bankers Association monthly report of debits to individual bank accounts.

The CBA gives the Victoria area total at $76,500,000, compared with the record $317,500,000 established in June 1962.

It is the fourth successive month in which the 1963 figures have not come up to the 1962 standards, and the total debits for the first six months are running $100,000,000 below those of a year ago—at $1,517,000,000 against $1,618,700,000.

DOLLAR DIPS AGAIN

The Canadian dollar after making a recovery Monday following exemptions to Canada on the proposed new U.S. investment tax, was weak again Tuesday.

It dropped to $27.10 at the close on the New York money exchange, and left the impression in financial circles that the Bank of Canada may be asked to sell more of its U.S. dollar reserves to keep the dollar within its pegged range.

Finance Minister Gordon said in the House Tuesday that the Bank of Canada had sold $250,000 of its U.S. dollars to support a declining Canadian dollar exchange rate was "grossly exaggerated."

If the strain on the Canadian dollar continues, Canada could have to call upon the IMF for further support, but the consensus is that the ultimate cure—a further devaluation of the dollar on increased Canadian interest rates—will be resisted all the way by the U.S. administration.

BILL RATE RISES

The United States 91-day treasury bills were sold this week at another three-year high. The average yield was 3.22 per cent, compared with 3.19 per cent a week ago.

SALES IMPROVED

Imperial Oil improved moderately on its early 1962 record when it announced a net profit

Drop Continues

NEW YORK (AP)—An early advance by the stock market faded and stocks suffered their 10th straight daily decline.

A dampening report was news that the Securities and Exchange Commission had endorsed the recommendation of a study group that "floor trading" be abolished, informing Congress of its decision.

Rolls were weak all day.

Collieries Active

VANCOUVER—Canadian Collieries was active at 10%, as was Macmillan at 23%.

Utica was the most active mine, closing at .36. Western was also higher at 3.55.

Sales Tax Survives Attack

OTTAWA (CP)—New Democratic Party Tuesday tried to kill the sales tax on building materials and production machinery in the June 25 budget but their Commons motion was ruled out of order.

They forced a formal appeal of the ruling by Deputy Speaker Lucien Lamoureux but lost that vote by 100 to 70.

Black Answer

My Door Open Anytime

Municipal Affairs Minister Black said yesterday if Saanich councillors would invest "in a five-cent stamp or a 10-cent phone call" they could see him just about anytime they want to.

"My office door has been open here for 11 years," the minister said.

He termed criticism of the government by some Saanich councillors as "unfair and unwarranted."

He was surprised at Coun. Robert Outler's statement charging the government with "a total lack of communication" with Saanich.

REEVE SAT IN

"I remember when the reeve of Saanich wanted to see me he came down here and he got in right away," Black said.

He would see Saanich councillors right now except that he has to go to Ottawa on Thursday.

SHOWDOWN WANTED

Saanich councillors at a meeting on Monday indicated they want a showdown "summit talk" with four ministers to discuss six major questions affecting the municipality.

Three of the four, Black, Health Minister Martin and Highways Minister Gagliardi said there would be no problem in meeting the Saanich group. The fourth, Attorney-General Bonner, was not available.

UNSEEMLY OUTBURST

Martin termed the Saanich charges "a most unseemly outburst."

The councillors want to discuss use of Saanich courtroom facilities by outside municipalities, government intentions on police amalgamation, a new north-south highway, Colquitz Mental Hospital, sewage disposal and higher social service costs.

Baby Seal Dies At Gardens

The baby hair seal found on the beach at Sooke and turned over to the Undersea Gardens at Oak Bay died Sunday.

"We are looking for one to replace it and hope to obtain one soon," said Charles White, manager of the gardens.

WOULDN'T FEED

"We just couldn't get this one to feed and he got too weak to survive," he said.

"The response to our Name The Seal Contest was so great that we are going to keep it open and announce a closing date after we get a new seal," he said.

They will be ready for the new seal. A house and a platform has already been built at the gardens.

Troll Boats Out Today

BULLETIN

The Pacific Trollers Association announced early today its 1,000 members will resume fishing this morning along the west coast of Vancouver Island up to Cape Cook, the northwest tip.

Members of Pacific Trollers Association were still tied up in Victoria last night, but some Victoria trollers, members of the Prince Rupert Fishermen's Co-operative Association, started fishing Tuesday.

First break in the 12-day strike of the independent United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union came when tenders and shoreworkers settled with the Prince Rupert Co-op, which has buying stations along the entire west coast.

WORD AWAITED

The 3,000 members of the Pacific Trollers Association will remain tied up at least until they receive word from the West Coast Trollers Association of Washington State.

Pacific president Dick Williams said the association won't put a fish on the U.S. market until the Americans are fishing and selling and won't undercut U.S. prices. The Americans are negotiating prices.

BUMPER CATCHES

Meanwhile U.S. fishermen are reported taking bumper catches of sockeye from the Fraser River run. Fishing in U.S. waters has been extended 24 hours this week to cut down the number of fish heading for B.C.

$2,800

Seized By Union

A non-union Tofino fisherman said Tuesday the Independent United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union has seized $2,800 from him.

Ross Riley, 25, a UBC graduate, said the union told him he'd forfeit the money if he fishes before the current strike ends. He had to sign an agreement allowing the union to seize the money or a 7,000-pound catch would have gone bad.

Union Secretary Homer Stevens said Riley will get the money when the strike is settled, provided he abides by the agreement.

FAST DEADLINE

Riley said he brought his 48-foot boat Viscount into Ucluelet Tuesday, a day past the strike deadline for landing fish. He said he was told the union would handle his fish and it was trucked to a fisheries company in Vancouver.

Later, he was informed he would have to sign the cargo over to the union or it would be declared "hot."

"I couldn't take the chance of losing the catch so I signed."

City Anglers Lucky, Unlucky

A Victoria family of five, on vacation at Qualicum Beach, won't suffer from the fishermen's strike for at least a week or two.

Mr. and Mrs. W. McCarter and children Ken, Debbie and John, out fishing with Mike Gorick as guide, caught eight coho during a 2½-hour outing.

Victoria fishermen Roy Neil, Henry Boudreau and Herbert Griffiths were fined $10 each in Sooke magistrate's court Tuesday for overstepping the four-fish limit. Their fish were seized.

William Guiney, also of Victoria, was fined $10 for failing to produce a commercial fisherman's licence.

Everyone Enjoys Festival of Films

By JURGEN HESSE

Romance and reminiscing go hand in hand on a summer evening in Beacon Hill Park when the silver screen tells of faraway places.

From the loudspeaker at the Cameron bandshell a stomping Irish jig blares forth and elderly men and women tap their feet.

Young couples huddle on benches, children romp on the grass, teen-agers flash quick looks toward the opposite sex, ducks glide around the nearby pond and the setting sun warms the crowd of spectators waiting for the Victoria international film festival to begin.

It is a conglomeration of opposites.

A trio of teen-age girls walk barefoot in short shorts, as dozens of sedate elderly couples arrive equipped with chairs, winter coats and blankets.

An oldtimer with handlebar moustache pushes his old-fashioned bicycle to a tree, then sits down on a small stool.

Three teen-age boys approach two girls in pedal-pushers lying on the grass. The girls giggle, the boys giggle. One boy sits down, the girls ignore him, soon all five are talking.

A middle-aged woman strides past, a Pekinese tucked inside her woolen overcoat.

The dusk settles, the air gets cooler and blankets are drawn around shoulders.

The film screen becomes brighter with the waning light, the sound carries almost a mile, and park lights flick on over walkways.

As darkness falls, lighted cigarettes pierce the rows of spectators while the flicker of the screen casts rainbow colors over their faces.

A seagull glides into the projector's light and many heads glance up at the intruder.

Every night, different people come to watch the films: Welsh, Scots, Britons, French, Germans, Dutch—the bulk of these ethnic groups determined by the festival's theme of the night.

Few of the crowd of usually more than 1,000 leave before the last film reels off.

Just Who Can Sue Whom?

Smoke, Fly Ash Problem Bursts Out Again

Victoria's smouldering smoke and fly ash problem which flared up over the weekend with complaints by Gorge-Dunedin residents burst out again Tuesday over just who could sue the city for compensation.

A city spokesman said fly ash comes mainly from waste burners operating within the smoke bylaw and the owners could sue the city for compensation if they were forced to stop.

But a city businessman said he felt householders, motel operators, service station owners and businessmen who have to put up with the dirty ash have a good claim for compensation against the city for allowing the burners to operate at all.

"What about the people who have been suffering all these years?" E. P. Hudson, managing director of Stewart & Hudson asked. "Don't they have a claim for compensation?"

A number of businesses suffer considerable financial loss with damaged merchandise, clothing and loss of business generally.

"We are put to the expense of sweeping it up and removing it—there's too much for the city garbage service to take away."

"The business people in the fallout area are wondering where they stand on compensation. We feel the people who put out the fallout should put up a fund to compensate their neighbors."

"This problem of smoke and ash fallout has been overcome in dozens of centres and cities throughout North America."

Skeena Returns

The destroyer escort HMCS Skeena returned to Esquimalt Tuesday because of mechanical trouble.

The ship, on a cruise with HMCS Fraser, Margaree and Mackenzie, was not due to arrive back until Friday. The other three ships will return Friday as planned.

Ailing Actor Satisfactory

Sebastian Cabot, television star now living in North Saanich, was reported still in satisfactory condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital last night following a mild heart attack Monday.

Inquest Today

A coroner's inquest into the traffic death of Gordon Troy, 19, of 963 Sluggert, will be held in McCall's chapel at 10 a.m. today. He died after a Patricia Bay Highway crash Thursday.

"Why can't we beat the problem in Victoria? What is so different about Victoria?"

"When you come to think of it, it's just about the same as this man living next door getting a can of garbage and throwing it over your fence."

The city spokesman was Aid. Geoffrey Edgell, chairman of the smoke abatement committee. He said waste burners handling some 550 tons of wood a day in the city are allowed under the smoke bylaw to discharge two tons of "carbon deposits" into the air.

"Basically, the final answer is to have no burners because you can't control a burner as you can a smoke stack."

"At the present time our smoke inspector, Sam Mottishaw, says they are within the bylaw. As long as there are any burners there will be a certain amount of problem."

"Industry has been operating all these years and if the burners were banned the taxpayers of Victoria would have to compensate them. It could run into many thousands of dollars."

"I defy anybody, as long as there are burners and so long as they burn waste of this type, to come up with an answer to the problem."

"To make the bylaw tougher than it is, you shut industry down."

Crash Stalls Holiday As Four People Hurt

One woman is in critical condition and three other people are in fairly good condition in hospital following a two-car crash at McDonald Park Road and Mills Cross Road, North Saanich, late Tuesday afternoon.

In critical condition at Rest Haven Hospital, Sidney, is Mrs. Nellie Stent, of West Summerland, B.C. She was a passenger in a car driven by her husband, Herbert, when it collided with one driven by Miss Eunice Peters, 1120 Pembroke.

THREE RELEASED

Released from Rest Haven after a checkup were Mr. Stent and Alan and Peter Stent, aged 12 and 10.

Miss Peters and one of her passengers, Mrs. Olive Rogers of North Vancouver, are in fairly good condition at Rest Haven Hospital.

Another passenger, Miss Mary Baxter, 956 Fairfield, is in fairly good condition at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Police said the Stent car was travelling west on Mills Cross Road when it collided with Miss Peters' car, going south on McDonald Park Road.

JUST ARRIVED

Mr. Stent said last night at Rest Haven that he and his family had just arrived on the island for two weeks of fishing and sightseeing.

"We just came off the ferry at Swartz Bay," said Mr. Stent, "and were on our way in to Victoria."

TO LOOK AT BOMBERS

"When we passed the big water bomber planes at the airport we decided to drive over and have a look at them. We had just left the highway to get a closer look when the crash occurred."

"It's a bad way to start your holidays," he said, "but the important thing is that no one was killed."

BACK FROM PICNIC

In Miss Peters' car besides Mrs. Rogers and Miss Baxter was Mrs. J. Wong, 934 Mason. The four women were returning from a picnic on Salt Spring Island.

Saanich Bylaw

Donnybrook Over Signs?

Loudest donnybrook in years could erupt in Saanich council soon when the deadline arrives for removal of all advertising signs which do not conform to the municipality's sign bylaw.

Some owners of non-conforming signs already are planning to safeguard their investments.

Saanich adopted the sign bylaw in 1960 but allowed sign owners three years to conform to the bylaw. The period ends in September.

Chief inspector Smith said last night a member of his staff is surveying the situation, and suggested that since council orders probably will be needed for removal of signs, each case might be reviewed individually.

Some signs were put up under building permits and it would have to be decided whether these could be taken down under provisions of a bylaw, he said.

Specifically banned are signs which flash or rotate. Two large signs which appear to fall within these categories are the huge Heaney's moving van sign on Douglas, and the rotating sign at the hamburger drive-in at Elk Lake.

One Patricia Bay Highway sign does not conform and the owner is prepared to put it on a truck, park it outside his premises, and move it every so often, if necessary.

Advice Ignored Then Jail

A young man who ignored police advice upon leaving city magistrate's court yesterday morning found himself arrested and jailed for 10 days by Magistrate William Ostler in the afternoon.

Stanley Peine, 3232 Irma, appeared in city magistrate's court yesterday morning for a probation report on his driver's licence. He had already appeared on a speeding charge and had his licence suspended.

NEEDED LICENCE. Peine said he needed his licence for business, but was told at yesterday's court session his licence would be suspended for all purposes.

In Saanich police station after court he told city police constables Albert Harwood and Thomas Anthony about his licence problem and was advised "whatever you do, don't drive."

Then Saanich police station Const. Harwood saw Peine drive away. He was arrested at his home a few minutes later.

DIDN'T REALIZE. Pleading guilty to driving while under suspension, at yesterday afternoon's court session, he said: "I didn't realize what I was doing. I just drove the car. I don't live far from here."

Magistrate Ostler termed his conduct contemptuous and jailed him for 10 days.

George H. Saywell, 81, of 897 Byng—who gave up his driver's licence and sold his car following an accident at Burdett and Quadra June 13—was fined $35 for careless driving, in city magistrate's court, despite a plea that he blacked out just before the accident. Saywell said he was about 84 feet from the intersection when he saw a car approaching, then "I blacked out and when I woke up I was running into a tree."

Police testified Saywell told them he went through a red light at the intersection which they said, was controlled by a stop sign.

Saywell told the court: "If I did say that, it was because I was fuddled."

Magistrate Ostler complimented the accused on giving up his driver's licence, but ruled Saywell's testimony of a blackout was unacceptable because witnesses reported he had been asking questions and talking at the accident scene. The magistrate suggested this was not the conduct of a man who had had a blackout.

John MacEwen, 30, and James Mooney, 18, nabbed by police after eating a meal and running from a city cafe without paying, pleaded guilty to vagrancy, and were remanded to July 31 for probation report and sentence.

Sooke Fines

Fined in Sooke magistrate's court Tuesday were Jerry Kielman, Jordan River, consuming liquor in a public place, $50; Robert Cronin, Sooke, speeding, $25, and Albert Gold, Victoria, failing to give a proper signal while driving, $10.

No Decision On Route Of Highway

Highways Minister Gagliardi said Tuesday survey stakes driven into the town of some Saanich residents don't necessarily mean anything.

He said his department is trying to find the right route for a new north-south highway linking Victoria and the northern tip of the Saanich Peninsula, to relieve congestion on the present two-lane route.

They haven't found it yet. His statement came in reply to a petition signed by 30 Patricia Bay Highway residents.

Restaurant and Hotel

New Life for Old Ships

The three-funnelled CPR steamer Princess Elaine, built in 1928 for the Nanaimo-Vancouver run, has been sold to a group of Blaine, Wash., businessmen for use as a floating restaurant.

A sale is also pending for the CPR's Princess Louise to be used as a floating hotel and restaurant just south of the ferry terminal at Tsawwassen.

Both steamers are at the CPR Belleville Street wharf in Victoria.

The Elaine spent most of her time plying between Nanaimo and Vancouver but was also used in the Gulf Islands, the day run to Victoria and the Powell River run.

She was built by the John Brown shipyard in Clydebank, Scotland, has been laid up in a water lot by the provincial government.

Her engines will be removed before she goes to the Blaine Arch Park to take up her new life as a restaurant. Her car deck is to be converted into a dance hall.

Sale of the Princess Louise, is dependent upon the granting of a water lot by the provincial government.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I was deeply disappointed in your advice to the wife who signed herself "Frantic and Disappointed." She griped because her husband had fallen into the habit of coming home for lunch five times a week—"with a come-hither look in his eye."

The woman insisted that she loves her husband very much, but she complained that 12:30 p.m. is no time for romance when three kids are home for lunch, a laundress is in the basement, the doorbell is ringing and she is trying to get to a 2 p.m. church guild meeting.

I thought for sure you'd clothe her the selfish words for not doing her duty. Instead you advised her to tell her husband she married him for better or for worse—"but not for lunch."

Why do you so freely buy the notion that a husband should be looked upon with scorn and contempt just because he is healthy and normal?

An overwhelming majority of American wives are so thoroughly involved with their tea parties, card playing, and country club Martini drinking that they are too darned pooped to satisfy the basic emotional needs of their husbands. No wonder the divorce rate is zooming.

A smart wife should congratulate herself for being desirable and needed. She should be thrilled that her husband wants to come home for lunch. You failed every red-blooded American male in your audience when you gave that lousy answer.

BITTERLY DISAPPOINTED

Dear Bitterly: Apparently I disappointed a substantial number of red-blooded American females, too. Dozens of wives wrote to say they'd be thrilled if their husbands came home for lunch. One woman wrote: "I wish my old man would appear for dinner. I never know where he is from one day to the next."

A reader in Chattanooga moaned, "Does the guy live in Tennessee? If he does please send him to my house for lunch. I'm a good cook and I'd be happy to see him."

I'm sorry to have to let so many of you down, but the advice still stands.

As for you, "Bitterly Disappointed," show me one tea partying, card-playing, Martini-swilling wife and I'll show you 500 floor-scrubbing, shirt-ironing, diaper-folding women who are busy from dawn till dusk trying to take care of their families.

It is absurd and animalistic to suggest that a wife should be on 24-hour call like an inhalator squad—ready for romance at the drop of a hint.

Married love is not a "duty" nor is it an accommodation. If the relationship is meaningful, it's a mutually rewarding and fulfilling experience. Perhaps there would be fewer divorces if more men were perceptive enough to consider a woman's emotional needs and attached as much importance to those needs as they attach to their own physical and emotional drives.

Dear Ann Landers: Well, here it is July and my husband and I are stone broke. Why? Because June is the month we get knocked over the head with wedding announcements, high school and college graduation announcements, Bar Mitzvahs and what have you. July is the month we have to pay for all the gifts we bought in June.

Why do people send announcements to friends and relatives who live thousands of miles away? Yes, we know Suzy is getting married and Howard is graduating. But we can't be there, so why don't they leave us alone?

Please print this letter as a protest to this transparent racket which masquerades as a compliment. Thank you—BUSTED.

Dear Busted: This subject has been argued since the Year One. My personal opinion: It's a compliment to be invited—but not to be "announced to."

Confidential to EXTREMELY EAGER: Forget the ventriloquist act and develop your own personality. Trying to borrow a girl friend's personality for the evening will not work.

Miller-Hale

Full Choral Service At St. Mary's, Oak Bay

St. Mary's Anglican Church, Oak Bay, was the scene of a lovely wedding Saturday afternoon when Hilary Joan Hale became the bride of Mr. William Hugh Miller. Handel's fugue from "Berenice" was played as the wedding party entered the church for a full choral service. The choir sang Psalm 128 during the signing of the register.

Rev. James R. Parker performed the marriage ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Hale, 1413 Newport Avenue, Victoria, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Miller of Dunville, Ont. Mr. Hale gave his daughter in marriage.

The bride walked up the aisle in a floor-length gown of Gulpure lace over peau de soie, fashioned with a scalloped neckline and hem. The dress was straight in front, gathered to fullness at the sides and swept to a two-foot train. A four-tier bouffant veil was caught by a pearl coronet and she carried a cascade of coral Talisman roses.

Miss Beryl Hale, bridesmaid, wore a gown of deep rose organza over taffeta, with rose veil headpiece and carried white carnations. Junior bridesmaids Kathy Suddes, age five, and Maureen Suddes, age 11, small cousins of the bride, wore white organza, the bodices embroidered with roses. They carried deep pink roses.

Mr. Bob Miller, brother of the groom, came from Toronto to be best man. Ushers were Mr. Ron J. Pikula of Montreal and Mr. K. H. Richert of Vancouver.

The Royal Victoria Yacht Club was decorated with white gladioli and gypsophila for the reception. A four-tier wedding cake surmounted by fresh rosebuds was set on a hand-made lace cloth from Peking. Mr. A. Carter proposed the toast to the bride whom he knew as a child in Peking and later in Hong Kong.

For a honeymoon trip to the East, the new Mrs. Miller changed into a white brocade sheath dress with matching three-quarter-length coat. She wore a white silk floral picture hat.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller will reside in Toronto.

Marriage Bureaus Thriving

HAMBURG, Germany — Marriage bureaus in West Germany are doing a thriving business these days.

There are dozens of such marriage "institutes" in each larger West German city.

One—admittedly one of the better known—averages some 800 new clients a month.

Considering that each new customer means about 300 marks ($75) in fees, the business averages a gross income of some 150,000 marks ($37,500) monthly.

Some brokers claim that about 60 per cent of all their customers find a husband or wife.

Of course, no effort is spared because each wedding means another handsome fee.

What kind of people use these bureaus?

Actually, there are all types, with women outnumbering men by about three to one. This surplus of women is due partly to the tremendous war casualties.

However, many are in their 20s, usually pushed into marriage by their parents, who feel their children will have a better chance of finding the right husband or wife this way. "Right" often enough is synonymous with "well-to-do."

Heim Banishes Knees

PARIS (Reuters) — Jacques Heim dropped the hemline three inches Tuesday in the first "revolution" of the Paris autumn and winter fashion collections.

Heim's new silhouettes banish the knees, emphasizing the hips and natural waistline.

Inspiration for this collection is derived from the central European peasant and the 19th century shepherdess.

The peasant wears low-heeled boots and a Russian babushka or kerchief made in matching fur or suede.

Fur banding plays up the mid-calf hemline.

The daytime silhouette has entirely new proportions, due to the hem length and ultra-short suit jackets or boleros.

The shepherdess wears coats with tiny waistlines or full swirling skirts which Paris has not seen for years.

Neckline treatments are mostly co-related to hemlines with bias collars matching the flared banding of dress hems.

Long sleeves are the new decree.

Heim's cocktail and dinner dresses are even longer — 13 inches from the floor.

The formal suit made entirely of precious fur is almost as popular as the fur-bordered ensembles.

Wild mink is worked in horizontal bands for a flared skirt with matching jacket.

VOW Asks Overhaul

OTTAWA (CP)—The Voice of Women urged the federal health department Monday either to overhaul Canada's radiation monitoring service or to introduce a process of removing radioactive contamination from dairy products.

The urging was contained in a brief addressed to Health Minister Judy LaMarsh and presented to Dr. Stanley Haldasz, Liberal MP for Toronto Parkdale and parliamentary secretary to Miss LaMarsh.

Prepared by Dr. Ursula Franklin, a physicist with the Ontario Research Foundation of the University of Toronto, the brief charged that the federal government's radiation monitoring program is not providing a factual basis for the assessment of the public health hazard posed by fallout.

It accused the government "of an apparent lack of interest" in the problem despite the fact that testing of nuclear weapons by the United States and Russia in 1962 equalled the total of all previous testing.

"We have to expect major fallout effects from these events during the spring and summer of 1963," the brief said.

Spotlight Turns On Paris Hats

By LUCIE NOEL

PARIS (AP) — Ladies' hats—from elaborate turbans to bushkas and not-so-plain berets—took the spotlight in leading Paris fashion houses Monday.

Newest turbans have egg-shaped or square boxed crowns in felt. Some sport contrasting colors in felt with wide spiral or pin-wheel stripes. Many are printed in barnyard stripes and St. Cyr features a turban with feather mats forming the crown. Uncurled ostrich feathers cascade down the back.

Albuoy has a striking cocktail beret in ruby velvet with a man's bow tie across the front.

Orcel achieves bulk in a beret with ruffled melon sections. This creation comes in daytime felt or sheer veiling and tuff for evening wear.

Laevin's talented designer, Bernard Devaux, has introduced brown mesh over white felt. Shapes are small, high and head-hugging. His occasional coticone crown or Joan of Arc helmet creations feature color and fabric contrasts.

Garden Notes

Tricky Transplant

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRES

The peony is one plant which doesn't take very kindly to transplanting, and always seems happiest when you don't fuss with it too much, allowing it to settle down comfortably in the one place for a span of four or five years. There comes a time in the life of every plant, however, when it gets overgrown and congested, and all the goodness in the soil around the roots is exhausted.

There are several signs that indicate this condition. The bush becomes pretty big, for one thing, with a dozen or more stems coming up from the roots. The outer stems of the clump are floppy and weak and must be supported with stakes and a string tied around its middle. The flowers are smaller and more numerous than normal, but they don't last very long in bloom, and they are almost useless as cut flowers, shedding their petals very soon after cutting.

Several of my pet peonies reached this stage this year after living in the same site for five years, and the blooms were nowhere near as large nor as fresh-looking as those on younger plants. These have been earmarked to be dug up this fall, divided, and replanted in a different site.

Along about September I will start watching these plants carefully for the signs indicating that the ideal time for transplanting has arrived. This signal is a change of color in the leaf—usually reddish or bronze tints appear, or in some varieties, merely a darker or duller shade of green. This can occur any time in the fall, and this autumn coloring signifies the best time of the whole year either to transplant your present plants or to buy and plant roots of new varieties.

Most peony roots are purchased and planted in the spring, but spring is certainly not the ideal time—I suppose the garden shops and centres feel they have a better chance of selling them while the gardening fever is running its highest temperature. These spring-planted roots will usually survive in good health, but they are much slower in coming into bloom than fall-planted specimens.

In transplanting your overgrown clumps, ease them out of the ground very gently with a digging fork, prying up from several different angles until they come free without any breakage of the roots. Clean them up a bit so you can see what you're doing as you divide them.

First, cut off all the topgrowth close to the roots, and the only safe place for these stems is in the incinerator, for there is a lot of peony botrytis disease around, and the winter home of the infecting spores is on the bases of the old stems.

Now you can divide your clumps of fleshy roots into smaller pieces, using a sharp knife or an old hacksaw blade. Don't cut up the clump too small, for while each piece with an "eye" is capable of making a new plant in time, such small bits would send up only one single leaf next year, and it could take as long as three years before any flowers appeared. Each piece for replanting should contain from three to five eyes or growth buds.

In replanting your pieces, be careful not to set them in too deeply, for the growth buds in the top surface of the root should be covered with exactly two inches of soil, no more, no less. Roots set in much deeper will grow, but they'll make all leaves and no flowers.

There seems to be a popular belief that manure should never be used in a peony planting site. Personally, I have had nothing but good results from digging in very old rotted manure, and I don't think any other material will condition the soil quite so satisfactorily. It should be mellow and thoroughly decayed, though, and it should be dug in widely throughout the whole peony bed, not just dumped into the bottom of the planting hole.

SHEILAH GRAHAM Reports from London

Christine Movie Held Up

LONDON (NANA) — Christine Keeler's film producers in Scandinavia are holding up their planned movie biography of the fragile-looking girl who was strong enough to shake a government. There may be some new legal developments against Christine resulting from that 10-hour tape recording turned over to police by her ex-manager, Canadian Robin Drury. And some of this will be told at the appeal of "Lucky" Gordon at the Old Bailey next week.

All of a sudden everyone is claiming to be a close friend of actress Valerie Holman, whose other name is Mrs. John Profumo, Valerie and the ex-cabinet minister recently returned to London from a sun-banned visit to Lilli Palmer's farm in Switzerland.

They're saying here that if Mr. Macmillan had been alive, the Ward-Keeler case could never have happened.

Newest twosome: British actor Dirk Bogarde and the Duchess of Argyll. He's a brave man.

From New York comes news of the marriage of Robert Wagner and Marion Marshall Dore. Both have been married previously. Wagner to actress Natalie Wood, and his bride to film executive Stanley Dore.

At the midnight showing of Laurence Harvey's The Ceremony, James Mason with long English-style locks introduced me to a young beauty, but all I caught was her first name, Elizabeth. Earlier I had seen the new Iris Murdoch-J. R. Frimley play, A Severed Head. Apart from the fact that everyone seemed to be jumping in and out of bed with the most unexpected people, I found the play somewhat confusing. It could have been from the torpor induced by the stifling heat of the theatre. They do not have air conditioning in the West End.

Boddy Mann followed Kim Novak back to California. But I think he is dreaming up the wrong tree. Kim is Greta Garbo all over again. She goes to the brink of matrimony, but what man can make her jump?

Is Mrs. Tony Curtis keeping a happy secret?

The Gino Lollobrigida picture, A Woman of Straw, has been postponed to Aug. 6. Not because of the threatened strike, which was settled before it could go into effect last Monday, but because of the script. After her Lady I, experiences at Metro, Lollo is insisting on a good complete story before she will step on the sound stage.

I had been curious about the fate of Sam Goldwyn's Porgy and Bess in London. Sam had waited four years to show his movie at the Dominion theatre. That's how long he was kept waiting by South Pacific. And he hoped for a similar long run. Alas, it lasted weeks, instead of years. People had been hearing of Porgy for so long, they thought they had already seen it.

Kim Novak, left, emphasizes Garbo analogy by again running away from brink of marriage. Meanwhile, Robert Wagner, above, taken now bride to replace Natalie Wood.

Another acting role for my good friend Arthur Christensen, the editor who made the Daily Express here a great newspaper in his day. "This time I play the editor of the Bath Evening News," said Chris. He played the editor of the Express in The Day the Earth Caught Fire. My friends have said, isn't it a comedown? Not at all. I'm delighted that I was given another acting part."

At a recent charity premiere, Princess Margaret politely asked Laurence Harvey what he had been doing lately in the way of films. And Larry just as politely told her about The Ceremony, and Her Royal Highness replied: "Will you please send me a print?" He was delighted to oblige.

William Holden's The Americanization of Emily, is still looking for a leading lady "with sex appeal." And I still say, how about Christine Keeler?

Tab Hunter, like Cary Grant before him, has taken some LSD, the drug used by some psychiatrists on their patients. Tab claims the stuff has helped him in his career. Perhaps it has also helped his romantic life. He is having some dates with a former Miss America.

JOHN CROSBY Sums Up French 'Flies'

All Things to All Men

PARIS — The cops, or the flies, as the French rather contemptuously call them, are trying to change their public image. A tough proposition. Cops are cops everywhere. They feel isolated, overworked, underpaid, and misunderstood. Every cop feels that way, whether he's French, Greek, or what have you.

Pierre Bertaux, professor of literature at Lille University, once director-general of the Surete Nationale says that "a nation has the police it deserves." It certainly does. No other nation but the French would have produced an ex-cop who makes cracks as balanced and reasonable as that.

The French cop is certainly a rather special article—no easily dismissed with a single wisecrack.

To the tourist, he is that very polite Frenchman in a cape who always salutes you when you ask him where the Tour d'Argent is and who, what's more, knows where everything is and tells you with an extravagance of gesture and a discipline of language that is better than a road map.

The French citizen has his own image of a French fly as a bully, sadist, Fascist, and crook, who wields the lead weights in his picturesque cape for the sheer pleasure of it.

A French newspaperman told me the other day with magnificent Gallic cynicism: "Nothing the French policeman does will give a Parisian a good opinion of him. If the fly smiles, the Parisian thinks: 'Aha, he's laughing at me!' If he helps old ladies across the street the Parisian says: 'Aha, he's trying to seduce her!' No fly can do anything creditable."

The French police have been getting some bad publicity for violating one of the first laws of cops everywhere. A movie star, Jean-Paul Belmondo, somehow became unconscious after arguing with a fly.

No one has been crazy enough to suggest that the cops belted him; he just suddenly lost consciousness.

Now, the two cardinal rules of police work are:

● Never leave any marks on a man.

● Never hit anyone who has the ears and sympathy of the press.

For years the French police have belted anyone who looked even vaguely Algerian without attracting attention. Comes a movie star, and the sidewalks heiched news papermen and photographers. Hence all this image changing.

It'll take some doing. Every one has got his own image of the French cop and each one is different and each one violently conflicts with all the others and they're all right.

More or less in the spirit of muddying the waters, I'd like to contribute my own reflections on the French cop who is a magnificently complex creature.

In the first place, he's the world's worst traffic cop. A French traffic cop will arrive at an intersection where traffic is flowing smoothly in all directions and in five minutes he will get things hopelessly snarled, cars backed up for blocks, horns tooting, people furious, nothing moving.

After he's got the situation in a thorough mess, he throws up his hands and goes off for an aperitif; then the motorists untangle themselves.

By then the cop has finished his aperitif, he comes back and finds everything running smoothly. Mon-Dieu, one can't have that. He sets about, with superb Gallic finesse, to get everything all snarled up again. Takes genius of a diabolic sort.

A French cop is above all French. I know a girl who lives near a police station. She runs the gauntlet, as it were, every day on her way home, and she finds it bracing.

"Every day they call out little things. They notice my dress, my eyes, my walk, always something. I have never felt such a woman. Later, they've begun singing to me as I walk past. Marvellous little French songs."

"When I went to New York I started across a street and a cop bawled out: 'Hey, lady, lady!' The French cops don't treat me like a lady. They treat me like a woman."

The other image I have of a French cop is the photograph by Cartier-Bresson of a French cop looking into an art gallery at an impressionist painting—the lips pursed, eyes reflective, appraising, appreciative, skeptical, thoughtful, confident, and relaxed. Hand swinging his club.

What other cop would look at a painting with that nice blend of contradictory qualities? Or look at an art work at all? To paraphrase M. Bertaux, the French police have the nation they deserve.

Panrucker, 48, once described as having Vancouver's greatest "artistic touch," was put aboard a plane for London on orders from immigration authorities. He had been jailed for forging 61 pay cheques and stealing $5,000.

Nanaimo Murders

Police Ask Help

NANAIMO—A team of RCMP investigators, apparently near a dead end in their investigation of a brutal lovers' lane double murder, Tuesday issued another appeal for public assistance.

Police have only one good clue to the vicious murders: An uncommon model of a semi-automatic .22-calibre rifle. They appealed for public aid in finding the owner of the rifle, which has been established as the weapon that killed Diane Phipps, 19, a practical nurse, and her sweetheart, Les Dixon, 19.

The two had parked at Piper Lagoon, the local lovers' lane, in darkness last Oct. 16.

The murderer crept up to the car, shot Dixon twice in the back of the head and abducted Diane.

Police surmised that the man held the terrified girl with one hand as he drove eight miles through the Vancouver Island city to a point northwest of the city limits.

CAR HIT ROCK
Somehow — perhaps the girl jarred the steering wheel — the car struck a rock. At that spot, Diane was shot between the eyes.

Apparently unsatisfied that the girl was dead, the man beat her savagely with a rock, covered her body with dirt and parts of an old car and drove north to Long Lake.

There, he threw the Model 63 Winchester rifle into the water and disappeared.

Squads of RCMP conducted hundreds of investigations in a search for the killer. Then, last March 29, a boy skating on the ice of Long Lake found the rifle.

Efforts to trace the owner have failed. The rifle was made in 1940 and sold in 1942. It bears the serial number 41649A.

An RCMP spokesman said the force had no desire to alarm the public, but the possibility could not be ruled out that a man capable of such a brutal murder might kill again.

ANYONE, ANYWHERE
He said RCMP would interview anyone — in confidence, if desired — anywhere in Canada provided they felt they had some information to contribute to the investigation, particularly the ownership of the rifle.

Students Coddled?

VANCOUVER (CP)—Attorney General Robert Bonner said Tuesday a $2,700,000 extra operating grant sought by the University of B.C. would have gone toward "spoon-feeding" students.
The university last week accepted a $370,000 budget boost, although it asked for $2,700,000 and set a bare minimum of $1,000,000.
"Sometimes we have the mistaken notion we have to spoon-feed students," Bonner said. "We don't."

World Report

Old Spitfire Moved As Germans Arrive

COLTSHALL, England (Reuters)—The first West German Air Force squadron to visit Britain officially since the Second World War touched down here Tuesday just after two veteran Battle of Britain light planes — a Hurricane and Spitfire — were moved out of night "to avoid embarrassment." A British officer said: "We do not want any hard feelings."

VANCOUVER (CP)—A mother and her two children were buried in sand for 15 minutes Tuesday when their car collided with a 20-ton truck. Rescuers dug out Mrs. Bernice Brown and her children, Jo-Ann, 9, and Melvin, 6. The girl suffered a crushed chest, broken leg and cuts and was unconscious in hospital. Mrs. Brown and her son escaped with minor injuries.

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Heavy rains following Typhoon Agnes have put 430,000,000 gallons of water into Hong Kong's drought-stricken reservoirs. However, water still is rationed.

OTTAWA (CP)—The capital murder conviction of John Patton Thomson, 38, of Winnipeg was quashed Tuesday by the Supreme Court of Canada. A new trial was ordered.

More was convicted for the slaying of his wife last Sept. 27. He admitted killing his wife but pleaded he did not know what he was doing.

Firemen Not Fishing

City firemen who fish as part-time commercial fishermen are "not doing it while the strike in the fishing industry is on," their union leader said Tuesday.

Eric Simmons, replying to a statement by Dick Williams, president of the Pacific Trollers' Association, said it is a man's own business what he does in his time off, but union firemen would not violate a strike by selling fish. Police union officials made a similar statement.

Grimaces, Giggles, Smiles

Saucy Mandy Relished It All

LONDON (UPI)—"Luminous oyster shell finger nails sliding nervously up a smooth bare arm.
"Soot-black artificial eyelashes fluttering like the eyelids of a mechanical doll.
"Grimaces, giggles — and a judicial clip round the ear."
This was how Donald Zec, the Daily Mirror's show business critic, described Marilyn Rice-Davies, supporting actress in the sex-filled drama at Dr. Stephen Ward.

It was Mandy's day at the Old Bailey, said Zec, who was pulled off his regular beat to report that event that is utilizing Europe, where the English have long been regarded as a collection of prudens.

If Christine Keeler's entrance the day before had been dramatic, Mandy's entrance into the famous court of justice was atomic, Zec said.

"In between the sauciness and the smudge of mascara in teary-damp eyes, Mandy had us all staggered if not stupefied. "We saw a tallish baby doll of a female whose birth certificate says she is a teenager, but whose well-rounded construction, the paint, the powder and the fluttering lashes told a more advanced tale."

"At one moment during the hull in the extraordinary bedtime story her evidence revealed, I swear she mounted a silent kiss to someone she recognized in the public seats," Zec wrote.

Zec said it was clear that Miss Rice-Davies, who compares herself to Admiral Nelson's mistress, Lady Hamilton, was relishing every moment of it.

Her mouth, he said, widened into a flare of scarlet, "she bestowed friendly smiles on the judge, the two leading counsel and her audience."

But, Zec added, if this was intended to melt the judge, "I can tell you that the judicial ice remained coolly intact. His Lordship clearly was not amused."

"It is not a laughing matter," said the judge, and Mandy's smile faded instantly.

Her answers became "yes sir" and "no sir" as she replied to questions about her affairs, giving times and dates and places.

"She was giving a pretty composed account of herself," Zec wrote.

"But then her life with Peter

Rachman, his death, and her attempted suicide elapsed its way into the proceedings.

"And soon Mandy was thumbing the wet blackness of her eyes and nervously wiping it on the palm of her hand. She was hurt, and it showed."

LONDON (UPI)—Two leading believers in flying saucers joined farmer Roy Blanchard Tuesday in the belief that the mysterious "thing" which blew down his bury field was a visitor from outer space. But the British army said it could not support this theory.

The mystery arose 10 days ago when Blanchard discovered a crater in his field near Charlton, and found later, he said, that his barley and potatoes had disappeared "as if they were sucked out." He said a cow in a nearby field began shedding its hide as though scorched.

The army sent in bomb disposal experts who have been digging for several days without finding anything. They said their detection devices picked up something metallic but that they had no idea what it was and that they would keep digging until they found out.

The latest to espouse the flying saucer belief was Dr. Robert Randall, a leading Australian astro-physicist. He linked the crater with other mysterious marks found in nearby fields and said they were caused by the forced landing of a saucer he estimated to be 500 feet across, weighing 600 tons and carrying a crew of 50.

Randall, who visited the site, said the markings on the ground were caused when the saucer "bounced" while making a forced landing. He said he believed the saucer's solar batteries failed and that its crew had to repair it.

Test Treaty
Seems Sure

MOSCOW (AP)—A nuclear test ban treaty appeared virtually completed Tuesday but late-hour reports both in Washington and Moscow added a note of caution.

British, American and Soviet negotiators were bright and smiling when they left the conference table Tuesday afternoon, apparently having drawn up a treaty to ban tests in the air, under water and in space acceptable to all sides.

However, U.S. chief negotiator W. Averell Harriman suggested that treaties are finished when they are signed—and not before. Another meeting was scheduled for today, possibly to talk about an East-West non-aggression pact.

Macmillan Willing

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Macmillan said Tuesday he would willingly attend a summit conference if the Moscow nuclear test-ban negotiations produced a thaw in the cold war.

Dr. Shrum, chancellor of Simon Fraser University, a new university to be built in Burnaby, told a service club other measures also should be taken.

MARRIAGE FEE

He suggested that since unemployment was highest among the under-20 group — those without sufficient education — the government might impose a $200 fee for a marriage licence for those under 20 who wish to leave school and marry.

Another method would be to force youths under 20 to continue training unless they can produce a certificate from a psychologist proving them unfit for further training.

Two Spy Suspects
Arrested by Swiss

BERN (Reuters) — Two Swiss citizens have been arrested for selling information to Israeli intelligence about deliveries to Egypt by a Swiss manufacturer of motor pumps and turbines, police announced Tuesday.

The men were identified only as Neeser and Naez.

IN KUECH

Police said July 9 they had arrested in Zurich two citizens in possession of classified information.

The former employees of a motor, turbine and pump firm, entered on their own initiative into contact with Israeli intelligence to which they delivered reports on the firm.

JAIL TERM

Two alleged Israeli agents, Josef Ben Gal, 33, an Israeli civil servant, and Otto Joklik, 41, an Austrian nuclear scientist, were sentenced in June to two months' jail for co-operation putting pressure on the family of a West German scientist working on Egyptian rocket projects to force him to quit his job.

LONDON (CP) — Marilyn (Mandy) Rice-Davies, bejewelled lass from the English Midlands, said in matter-of-fact tones Tuesday her lovers have included the third Viscount Astor and actor Douglas Fairbanks Jr.

Where's
The Cash?

WINDSOR, Ont. (UPI)—A manila envelope containing $2,700 disappeared Tuesday when an accountant on his way to deposit the money in a bank fainted on a downtown street.

Police said several persons gathered around Mrs. Thelma Piper, 42, accountant for an army surplus store.

Her first comment when she awoke several minutes later was: "Where's the deposit?"

A search failed to turn up the envelope. Police are questioning those in the area when Mrs. Piper collapsed.

$1,115 on One
Drowned Sailors Robbed?

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec Provincial Police are investigating the possibility money was stolen from the pockets of Chinese seamen who drowned in the weekend Tritonics sinking in the St. Lawrence River.

Charles Edward Cantin, deputy attorney-general, said Tuesday it appears that at least two of the dead seamen were robbed.

Mr. Cantin said employees at the provincial morgue here, where an inquest was held Sunday to identify the victims, noticed that the pockets of two of the seamen were turned out.

LARGE AMOUNTS

Chinese seamen often carry large amounts of money while at sea, an official said.

One of the dead Chinese was found with $1,115 in United States money in his pocket, a morgue official said.

FIREMEN SCALE BLUFF
SAVE BOY

By JACK FRY

Rescuers climber 1,400-foot-high Mt. Finlayson near Goldstream Park Tuesday to bring down an 11-year-old city youth who fell 20 feet down a rock bluff near the crest.

James Cowie, son of Sqdn. Ldr. and Mrs. M. J. Cowie, 1228 McKensie Street, suffered cuts to the scalp and possible injury to the collarbone but was reported in satisfactory condition at St. Joseph's Hospital at press time.

He was conscious throughout his ordeal. He managed a smile and told a reporter "I feel fine," as he was being carried down the mountainside on a stretcher.

SECOND FALL

Yesterday's fall was the second in just over three months at Mt. Finlayson.

A navy helicopter and the Langford volunteer fire department joined forces on April 15 to rescue Kenneth Peach, 13, 1118 Hillside, who plunged 30 feet down the sheer west face of the mountain.

A narrow ledge stopped Cowie's rolling fall down the rock bluff after he apparently lost his footing on the trail.

HEART SURGERY

The youth had undergone open heart surgery two or three years ago but it was not known whether this had any bearing on the mountain mishap.

James Cowie was one of 27 members of the junior branch of the Victoria Natural History Society who are camping in tents this week in Goldstream Park.

He and a number of other youngsters from the group had gone on a mountain climbing expedition led by prominent Victoria naturalist Freeman King.

STARTING DOWN

"We had been to the top and were starting down. We had gone about 200 feet when he slid on the face of a rock and fell 10 to 15 feet," said Mr. King.

Langford firemen said they thought the fall had been at least 20 feet.

"We moved him about 30 yards but because of his heart condition I thought it would be better to call for the firemen," Mr. King said.

RELAY MESSAGE

Mark Dames, a member of the party, was sent down the mountain as a runner to flag down a car and ask the driver to relay the message to the fire department.

Within minutes, eight men from the Langford volunteer fire department, with an ambulance, special rescue truck and chief's truck wheeled across the rustic wooden bridge towards the base of the Mt. Finlayson trail.

They claved their way up the muddy, slippery trail to the Cowie boy, eased him gently into the portable stretcher and started the hazardous trek downhill.

BOUGH GOING

The going was so rough in some spots that a rope tied to the stretcher was wrapped around tree trunks and paid off slowly as the stretcher bearers inched their way towards firmer ground.

"If I was 20 years younger, I'd have rigged a sling and brought him down myself," said the 73-year-old naturalist who has scaled Mt. Finlayson scores of times in his lifetime.

"I would like to express my thanks for the splendid job and manner in which the Langford fire brigade came in and helped," said Mr. King.

Liberal Choice

Tory MPs shouted "You'll be sorry" when Prime Minister Pearson announced Tuesday he has named former Tory cabinet minister George Hees, above, who quit Diefenbaker cabinet in pre-election split, to the commission arranging Montreal 1967 world fair. Meanwhile, Ottawa reports said Liberals had accepted George Drew's offer to retire this fall as high commissioner in London.

Seafarers

Back

MONTREAL (CP)—The Seafarers International Union (Ind.) demanded Tuesday that the federal government investigate the hearings of the Norris commission on maritime labor strife.

In a 16-page statement, the SIU accused Mr. Justice T. G. Norris of violating the principles of justice during his eight-month investigation of violence and shipping disruptions on the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence Seaway.

FIRST REACTION

It was the first SIU reaction to the Norris report, made public more than a week ago, which roundly condemned the actions of the SIU, and particularly Canadian President Hal C. Banks.

The statement included copies of telegrams the SIU sent to the ministers of justice and labor and Prime Minister Pearson demanding the investigation.

RECOMMENDATION

Mr. Justice Norris' chief recommendation was for a government trusteeship to take over management of marine unions until peace can be assured.

"The recommendations," the SIU statement said, "with their alien philosophies, their provisions for arbitrary and totalitarian rule bear out, unfortunately, our anticipation.

"They constitute a serious threat to the liberty and economic well-being of Canadian citizens."

Liaison Denied
By Fairbanks

NEW YORK (UPI)—Actor Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., admitted through a spokesman here Tuesday he knew British playgirl Christine Keeler and Marilyn (Mandy) Rice-Davies, but claimed his relationship with them was "innocuous."

Fairbanks issued the statement through a spokesman in New York because British law prevented him from speaking out in London.

Miss Rice-Davies put the finger on Fairbanks at the vice trial of society osteopath Dr. Stephen Ward when she said she had been intimate with the actor, now a millionaire businessman.

SHOCKED

"My meeting with both Miss Keeler and Miss Rice-Davies occurred as a result of their wanting an opportunity in films in which, as I was no longer producing, I could not really assist them. I suggested agents and others they might contact."

NOT INVOLVED

"Whereas I at no time was involved in the matter stated in court, and under English law I am prevented from making a statement in London until after the case is completed, I can say I am not only astonished at the statement, but vigorously deny it."

Danger
Trail

Boy who fell from rock bluff atop Mt. Finlayson Tuesday, James Cowie, 11, of 1228 McKensie Street, is carried down steep, wooded mountainside in stretcher borne by men from nearby Langford volunteer fire department. Descent was so dangerous in some places a rope from stretcher had to be wrapped around tree trunks to prevent new mishap.—(Jack Fry)

Some City Boats Go Out

Members of Pacific Trollers Association were still tied up in Victoria last night, but some Victoria trollers, members of the Prince Rupert Fishermen's Co-operative Association, started fishing Tuesday.

First break in the 12-day strike of the Independent United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union came when tendersmen and shoreworkers settled with the Prince Rupert Co-op, which has buying stations along the entire west coast.

They voted to accept a wage increase of 4½ per cent and fringe benefits.

WORD AWAITED

The 3,000 members of the Pacific Trollers Association will remain tied up at least until they receive word from the West Coast Trollers Association of Washington State.

Pacific president Dick Williams said the association won't put a fish on the U.S. market until the Americans are fishing and selling and won't undercut U.S. prices. The Americans are negotiating prices.

BUMPER CATCHES

Meanwhile U.S. fishermen are reported taking bumper catches of sockeye from the Fraser River run. Fishing in U.S. waters has been extended 24 hours this week to cut down the number of fish heading for B.C.

In Vancouver, packing companies denied strikers' charges that canners have cut off credit to strikers in upmost company stores and fuel stations.

Seized

By Union

A non-union Tofino fisherman said Tuesday the Independent United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union has seized $2,800 from him.

Ross Riley, 25, a UBC graduate, said the union told him he'd forfeit the money if he fishes before the current strike ends. He had to sign an agreement allowing the union to seize the money or a 7,000-pound catch would have gone bad.

Union Secretary Homer Stevens said Riley will get the money when the strike is settled, provided he abides by the agreement.

FAST DEADLINE

Riley said he brought his 48-foot boat Vicount into Ucluelet Tuesday, a day past the strike deadline for landing fish. He said he was told the union would handle his fish and it was trucked to a fisheries company in Vancouver.

Later, he was informed he would have to sign the cargo over to the union or it would be declared "hot."

"I couldn't take the chance of losing the catch so I signed," he said.

City Anglers Lucky, Unlucky

A Victoria family of five, on vacation at Qualicum Beach, won't suffer from the fishermen's strike for at least a week or two.

Mr. and Mrs. W. McCarter and children Ken, Debbie and John, out fishing with Mike Corick as guide, caught eight coho during a 2½-hour outing.

Victoria fishermen Roy Nell, Henry Boudreau and Herbert Griffiths were fined $10 each in Sooke magistrate's court Tuesday for overstepping the four-fish limit. Their fish were seized.

William Guiney, also of Victoria, was fined $10 for failing to produce a commercial fisherman's licence.

On a Summer Evening

Everyone Enjoys Festival of Films

By JURGEN HESSE

Romance and reminiscing go hand in hand on a summer evening in Beacon Hill Park when the silver screen tells of faraway places.

From the loudspeaker at the Cameron bandshell a stomping Irish jig blares forth and elderly men and women tap their feet.

Young couples huddle on benches, children romp on the grass, teen-agers flash quick looks toward the opposite sex, ducks glide around the nearby pond and the setting sun warms the crowd of spectators waiting for the Victoria International film festival to begin.

It is a conglomeration of opposites.

A trio of teen-age girls walk barefoot in short shorts, as dozens of sedate elderly couples arrive equipped with chairs, winter coats and blankets.

An oldtimer with handlebar moustache pushes his old-fashioned bicycle to a tree, then sits down on a small stool.

Three teen-age boys approach two girls in pedal-pushers lying on the grass. The girls giggle, the boys giggle. One boy sits down, the girls ignore him, soon all five are talking.

A middle-aged woman strides past, a Pekinese tucked inside her woolen overcoat.

The dusk settles, the air gets cooler and blankets are drawn around shoulders.

The film screen becomes brighter with the waning light, the sound carries almost a mile, and park lights flick on over walkways.

As darkness falls, lighted cigarettes pierce the rows of spectators while the flicker of the screen casts rainbow colors over their faces.

A seagull glides into the projector's light and many heads glance up at the intruder.

Every night, different people come to watch the films: Welsh, Scots, Britons, French, Germans, Dutch—the bulk of these ethnic groups determined by the festival's theme of the night.

Few of the crowd of usually more than 1,000 leave before the last film reels off.

It's B.C. Tonight

B.C. will be featured in the Victoria International film festival at 8:30 p.m. today.

The five documentaries to be shown are City of Many Faces, Indian Days, Rogers Pass, Saga of the Southwicks and Cattle Ranch.

Shoe goes on at film festival while Paul Modos, six-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Modos, 214 Moss, demands some attention to his own show—and gets it.

'Port' Floats Issue at Crest

Water Bonds Catch Tide

PORT ALBERNI—Council members congratulated themselves Monday on the recent sale by tender of outstanding debentures of the waterworks loan bylaw.

In a report from finance chairman Ald. Fred G. Weaver it was shown the successful tender for the issue had paid $779,574.90 plus interest accrued between June 1 and July 15 for the $777,000 of the outstanding principal of the $800,000 bylaw.

SALE FORTUNATE

"We were very fortunate that we sold the bonds when we did. We'd have been lucky to get 97 if we had waited another 10 days," Ald. Weaver said.

Instead of marketing the bonds in December, 1961, the council had arranged to hypothecate them to the Bank of Montreal pending completion of the project.

$779,575 SAVED

"It is interesting to note that we paid the bank in interest during the period of hypothecation the sum of $27,066.80. This compares with the sum of $63,367.30 which would have been paid on the debentures had they been sold when originally issued, the resultant saving being $36,300.50," Ald. Weaver reported.

"We feel a further saving

Tyee Will Be Carried In Comox-Alberni Trek

PORT ALBERNI—Port Alberni and District Chamber of Commerce will carry a big tyee over the route when members take part in trek from west to east on the Comox-Alberni route.

Planning to make the trip during the height of the tyee season here, the chamber commissioned Stan Wagstaff to catch the fish.

Mr. Wagstaff, who agreed with other members that tyee fishing here is better than at other points on the Comox-Alberni route, said that the road would bring tourists to Port Alberni for the sport.

Walter Dodsworth, president of Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau, was a guest at the meeting. He told the group that expensive publicity was not essential in promoting the sports fishing potential of the Alberni.

Hospital Plans Ready

DUNCAN—Detailed drawings for the Cowichan District Hospital to replace King's Daughters' Hospital have been presented to the hospital board by Vancouver architects Townley and Matheson.

The scaled drawings cover every floor from ground level to the fourth level proposed for future expansion. Site of the new building is near the corner of Gibbins and Cowichan Lake Roads.

Plans call for a T-shaped structure costing $3,000,000 and containing from 120 to 130 beds.

Board officials said close study has been made of other new hospitals in order to avoid structural and planning errors.

Wickannish

Lodge Expanding

LONG BEACH—Wickannish Lodge, near the south end of this West Coast Vancouver Island resort area, is coming under new management.

Joseph Webb, who with his wife has owned and operated the lodge for 15 years, continues his interest in the establishment.

and is joined by Robert Fells and Jeffrey Crawford of Vancouver. Mr. Fells will be resident manager.

No immediate changes are planned, but the management is considering extensive alterations and additions following the tourist season.

Meeting Today

Election of officers of the Victoria Camera Club will be held at the annual meeting in St. John Ambulance Hall, 941 Pandora Avenue, at 7:45 p.m. today.

Police have only one good clue to the vicious murders: An uncommon model of a semi-automatic .22-calibre rifle.

SEEK OWNER

They appealed for public aid in finding the owner of the rifle, which has been established as the weapon that killed Diane Phipps, 19, a practical nurse, and her sweetheart, Les Dixon, 19.

The two had parked at Piper Lagoon, the local lovers' lane, in darkness last Oct. 16.

The murderer crept up to the car, shot Dixon twice in the back of the head and abducted Diane.

Police surmised that the man held the terrified girl with one hand as he drove eight miles through the Vancouver Island city to a point northwest of the city limits.

CAR HIT ROCK

Somewhere—perhaps the girl jarred the steering wheel—the car struck a rock. At that spot, Diane was shot between the eyes.

GUN IN WATER

There, he threw the Model 63 Winchester rifle into the water and disappeared.

Squads of RCMP conducted hundreds of investigations in a search for the killer. Then, last March 29, a boy skating on the ice of Long Lake found the rifle.

FIRST, ONLY CLUE

That was the first solid clue. So far, it has been the only one.

Efforts to trace the owner have failed. The rifle was made in 1940 and sold in 1942. It bears the serial number 41649A.

An RCMP spokesman said the force had no desire to alarm the public, but the possibility could not be ruled out that a man capable of such a brutal murder might kill again.

ANYONE, ANYWHERE

He said RCMP would interview anyone—in confidence, if desired—anywhere in Canada provided they felt they had some information to contribute to the investigation, particularly the ownership of the rifle.

He said the rifle could have been in the hands of a gunsmith. It also may have been loaned, sold or stolen.

Look to Future

Wider Roads Duncan Aim

DUNCAN—City council at its meeting Monday night discussed the possibility of widening Trunk Road between the Trans-Canada Highway and Lakes Road from a 40-foot to a 50-foot width.

The study is preliminary and in preparation of the 1964 program.

Ald. Jim Patterson said, "Let's look into the future," and suggested a road width of 60 feet to cope with the steadily increasing traffic from mushrooming subdivisions and the Maple Bay area.

He felt bicycle paths could be included in a wider road, which will also have a sidewalk. The council will ask the provincial government to what extent the city will be helped in acquiring private property for the road project.

The government also will be asked to conduct a traffic count at the Trunk Road railroad intersection.

NEW CONTRACT

Council agreed to sign a new contract for three RCMP constables for another term ending May, 1964. At present the Duncan RCMP detachment has a total of 12 members including the commanding officer.

Subject to the confirmation by the city clerk, the Sea Cadets here will be granted permission to carry out a house-to-house canvass to raise funds for their activities, Sept. 26, 27 and 28.

Council decided in committee to raise the business tax rate by one-half per cent, to six from five and a half per cent. Originally it was planned to raise the tax for general revenue by one per cent but the finance committee recommended the cut.

REQUIREMENTS

Mayor and aldermen outlined requirements before the city will take over a 27-acre park from the local Rotary Club at the Cowichan River. The club recently approached the city and the latter set out the following points: clear

Around the Island

Speed Chief Killer

DUNCAN—Speed definitely is the cause of a majority of accidents, George Lindsay, superintendent of the Motor Vehicle Branch from Victoria told Duncan Rotarians Monday night.

The senior traffic expert said the accident rate in the Duncan area has decreased and he attributed that mainly to law enforcement and the magistrate's actions against offenders.

Coinciding with the talk on traffic safety Duncan Rotarians endorsed a safe driving campaign sponsored by Rotary International.

NANAIMO—The age limit for admittance to pool halls has been dropped from 18 to 16.

However, some of the responsibility for violation of the amended bylaw has been shifted to the shoulders of the young players.

Council, in granting the amendment to the bylaw, also laid down that under-age patronage can now be prosecuted. Previously only the operators could be charged.

The reduced age limit followed protests from young pool players. Mayor Pete Maffeo recently called a meeting to discuss the question with RCMP, pool hall operators, Magistrate Lionel Beevor-Potts and a few of the complaining boys.

It was agreed that 16 is not an unreasonable age provided the players have adequate supervision.

PORT ALBERNI—Rites will be held here today at 2 p.m.
for John Charles (Slim) Smith, retired welder, who died here at the age of 65 years.

Mr. Smith was born in Tacoma, Wash., worked for many years as a welder at Premier,
B.C., before coming to Port Alberni nine years ago.

A veteran, he will be buried in the Field of Honor, Greenwood Cemetery. Rev. John Frith will officiate at the funeral.
Mr. Smith leaves his wife, Mary Elizabeth, at the residence, 514 Tenth Ave. N.

TOFINO—Paving of the 23.5-mile Tofino-Uchuelst road, and of five miles of the road to Alberni, is expected to be completed on schedule, with gravel-ling alone due to be finished before mid-August.

NANAIMO—A series of dances in the Newcastle Island Pavilion is planned by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

First night is tentatively set for Aug. 3. The dances would be informal, said Brian Westwood.

COURTENAY—Services were conducted Tuesday afternoon for Mrs. Ben Poyart, who was found dead at her home near Miracle Beach Saturday.

Mrs. Poyart, aged 64, had been ill for four years.

NANAIMO—A pictorial map of Nanaimo and district has been completed by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The brightly illustrated map takes in the area south to Ladysmith and north to Park-ville. Major tourist attractions, services and retail outlets are clearly marked.

NANAIMO—The hood of a convertible was slashed by vandals outside the Civic Arena Saturday night.

David Lumsden of Vancouver reported to police that the fabric top of his automobile was slashed while he was watching the lacrosse game.

LAKE COWICHAN—Police
here are investigating a burglary at the Elks' Club in the village Saturday night. Police said the thieves forced their way into the building through the basement window. An undetermined quantity of liquor was taken.

ALBERNI — A stolen car was found gutted by fire 75 feet down an embankment about 15 miles out on the Tofino-Alberni road.

Reported stolen from the Lantern Inn on Beaver Creek Road at 5:20 a.m. Sunday by owner Lynn Clarence Green, Port Alberni, the 1958 Austin was found later on the same day.

RCMP are investigating.
NANAIMO — Vandalism on Protection Island and Newcastle Island has resulted in a crash-down by RCMP.

Police will increase patrols of the islands in an attempt to stamp out the recent waves of vandalism.

CHEMINUS — A man and a Pohjola died in Cheminus general hospital at 62. Born in Finland, Mrs. Pohjola came to the prairie provinces 55 years ago, later moved to B.C. where she has been a resident of Cheminus for the past 23 years.

Predeceased by her husband, Jalmor Pohjola, in 1948, she is survived by one son, Elmer, of Cheminus, and one daughter, Mrs. Marion Christal, of Ottawa, and one granddaughter.

Funeral services were held in Calvary Baptist Church
last Wednesday. Rev. A. J.
Clarke officiating.

Cattlemen See Exhibition

Nearly 80 members of the B.C. Aberdeen Angus Association were on hand Saturday at Woodwynn Farm, West Saanich Road, to see 230 head of Aberdeen Angus cattle on display at the association's annual field day.

Mrs. W. C. Woodward, wife of the former lieutenant-governor, was on hand to answer questions on blood lines and breeding of the prize herd.

The farm tour included a talk by Dr. J. C. Berry of the UBC faculty of agriculture on mating systems with special reference to line and cross-breeding.

Other speakers were Harold Simonsen, of Woodlawn Farm, Wetaskiwin, Alta., a director of the Canadian Aberdeen
Angus Association, and T. A.
Leader, of Northline Farm, Red Deer, both top breeders of the black beef cattle.

Storm Cost Set At $200,000

VANCOUVER (CP)—Typhoon
Freida, which hit the Lower Mainland last October, cost the park board here $200,000 to clean up Stanley Park alone.

William Livingstone, assistant parks superintendent, said much of the clearing work was needed and costs were kept down using the winter works program.

Meeting May Decide What of Old Hospital?

NANAIMO—A meeting of officials from the provincial health department, Nanaimo Old Age Pensioners' Organization, city hall and Nanaimo hospital will probably be called soon to discuss the fate of the old hospital building.

Mayor Pete Maffeo, after hearing an OAPO delegation
Monday night ask city council for support of the pensioners' bid to have the hospital converted to a chronic institution, said he favored the idea of a round table meeting.

Ald. John Cook, the city's representative on the health board, explained in a letter to council that the board is powerless to go ahead with the conversion of the old hospital without the health minister's approval and the assistance of the B.C.

Hospital Insurance Service.

Reeve Takes Service

Death of Minister Saddens Anniversary

DUNCAN—Exactly 25 years after Reeve Donald Morton and Gwendolyn Owens were married at the Duncan United Church, the same minister who had officiated, Rev. William Forsyth Burns, died.

The day was July 20, and the years 1938 and 1963. During these years Mr. Burns and the Morton family became close friends.

Last Sunday Reeve Morton conducted the services at the United Church, and later at a luncheon at the home of Mrs.
J. J. Nixon he and his wife and their 17-year-old son, John, unexpectedly were honored by a number of friends in commemoration of the 25th wedding anniversary.

Altogether 33 came from Toronto, Victoria, Cowichan

Station and Duncan. Among them was lifelong friend of
Mrs. Morton, 89-year-old Mrs.
John Fleet, one of the original pioneers in the Cowichan valley.

Collection Service Rejected

ALBERNI — Property owners in the Cherry Creek district turned down a plan to provide garbage collection service in the area. The result of the vote showed 43 in favor and 31 opposed to the plan.

Trustees of the Cherry Creek Water District had planned a collection system following arrangements with the council of Alberni for use of the city dump.

In Beaver Creek improvement district, the vote on the same question showed 65 in favor and 36 opposed.

As trustees required a 60 per cent affirmative vote in order to proceed with the plan, the plebiscite failed in both communities.

A joint meeting of the boards is planned to consider alternate proposals for the disposal of garbage in rural areas.

Parksville Event Success

PARKVILLE—Rain brought about some program changes, but otherwise failed to dampen the spirits of the annual Prairie People's Picnic at the Community Hall here.

About 1,000 former residents of the prairie provinces garthered from all parts of Vancouver Island were welcomed by Hon. David Fulton, special guest who commended chairman G. W. Begley and his assistants on the event.

JUDGE, TOO
Mr. Fulton, B.C. leader of the Progressive Conservative party, also acted as judge in the old-time "fisher" contest, won by Leonard Earl, Alberni.
Bob Humpherville, Victoria, was second, and Johnny Johnston, Courtenay, third.

Other judges were Mr. Begley, Mrs. Madge Grey, Mrs. Victoria Price and Cecil Wear.

WINNERS
Horseshoe-pitching tournament was won by Alex Fisher,
Comox, with Jim Terpeposky,
Honey, runner-up. Mrs. Anne Lee and Mrs. A. Hucksby were first and second in a women's spike-driving contest.

John Terpeposky, Alberni, was master of ceremonies and his orchestra provided music.
Entertainers included members of the Madge Grey School of Dancing, Nanaimo, and Edwin Grieve, 12, of Comox.

Harriman Waits

Test Treaty Seems Sure

MOSCOW (AP)—A nuclear test ban treaty appeared virtually completed Tuesday but late-hour reports both in Washington and Moscow added a note of caution.

Macmillan Willing

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Macmillan said Tuesday he would willingly attend a summit conference if the Moscow nuclear test ban negotiations produced a thaw in the cold war.

School Till 20 —Shrum

VANCOUVER (CP)—Dr. Gordon Shrum proposed Tuesday compulsory education should be extended to the age of 20 for boys and 19 for girls to prevent unemployment in Canada.

Dr. Shrum, chancellor of Simon Fraser University, a new university to be built in Burnaby, told a service club other measures also should be taken.

MARRIAGE FEE

He suggested that since unemployment was highest among the under-20 group — those without sufficient education — the government might impose a $200 fee for a marriage licence for those under 20 who wish to leave school and marry.

Another method would be to force youths under 20 to continue training unless they can produce a certificate from a psychologist proving them unfit for further training.

Two Spy Suspects Arrested by Swiss

BERN (Reuters) — Two Swiss citizens have been arrested for selling information to Israeli intelligence about deliveries to Egypt by a Swiss manufacturer of motor pumps and turbines, police announced Tuesday.

Spies Jailed

KARLSRUHE, West Germany (AP)—The federal supreme court Tuesday sentenced former West German intelligence official Heinz Felfe, 45, to 14 years at hard labor for spying for Russia. Co-defendant Hans Clemens, 59, drew three years and Hans Tiebel, 33, three years.

In Berlin, the East German supreme court sentenced Hans Globke, 64, Chancellor Adenauer's chief aide, to life at hard labor—in absentia—for war crimes.

Two alleged Israeli agents, Josef Ben Gal, 33, an Israeli civil servant, and Otto Joklik, 41, an Austrian nuclear scientist, were sentenced in June to two months' jail for coercion—putting pressure on the family of a West German scientist working on Egyptian rocket projects to force him to quit his job.

Ward Trial Explosive

I Hope He'll Be Acquitted—Mandy

By JOSEPH MacSWEN

LONDON (CP)—Marilyn (Mandy) Rice-Davies, bejewelled lass from the English Midlands, said in matter-of-fact tones Tuesday her lovers have included the third Viscount Astor and actor Douglas Fairbanks Jr.

The 18-year-old blonde, jaunty in a pink rose-petal hat and a grey wrapover dress, testified at the explosive vic trial of society osteopath Dr. Stephen Ward, 30.

"I hope he'll be acquitted," said the prosecution witness who was accused by defense counsel of trying to "out-Christine Christine" — Christine Keeler, whose sex affairs caused the resignation of John Profumo as war minister and shook the British government.

Sobs, surly crowds—and some of the hottest temperatures of the summer—featured proceedings at the Old Bailey Court. Two blondes, a brunette, a brown-haired girl and a redhead trooped to the witness box to tell of their relations with Ward.

Mr. Justice A. P. Marshall adjourned the hearing until today after prosecutor Mervyn Griffith-Jones angrily declared that one of his witnesses had turned hostile. That witness was red-haired

Margaret (Ronna) Ricardo, an admitted prostitute, who testified she recognized a two-way mirror setup in an apartment occupied by Ward because she herself earlier owned such a device.

But — in a voice inaudible most of the time—Miss Ricardo repudiated other statements made for a lower court earlier and Mr. Justice Marshall advised her to consider her position carefully before the hearing resumes today.

Easily the sensation of the day was the appearance of Miss Rice-Davies, who underwent more than two hours of questioning — despite an occasional tear — with apparent aplomb, an ordeal that left Miss Keeler wilted when the trial opened Monday.

She said she deeply loved

Where's The Cash?

WINDSOR, Ont. (UPI)—A manila envelope containing $2,700 disappeared Tuesday when an accountant on her way to deposit the money in a bank fainted on a downtown street.

Police said several persons gathered around Mrs. Theodora Piper, 42, accountant for an army surplus store.

Her first comment when she revived several minutes later was: "Where's the deposit?"

Drowned Sailors Robbed?

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec Provincial Police are investigating the possibility money was stolen from the pockets of Chinese seamen who drowned in the weekend Tritonica sinking in the St. Lawrence River.

Charles Edward Cantin, deputy attorney-general, said Tuesday it appears that at least two of the dead seamen were robbed.

Mr. Cantin said employees at the provincial morgue here, where an inquest was held Sunday to identify the victims, noticed that the pockets of two of the seamen were turned out.

LARGE AMOUNTS

Chinese seamen often carry large amounts of money while at sea, an official said.

CITY BOY SAVED

Bluff Scaled By Firemen

By JACK FRY

Rescuers climbed 1,400-foot-high Mt. Finlayson near Goldstream Park Tuesday to bring down an 11-year-old city youth who fell 20 feet down a rock bluff near the crest.

James Cowie, son of Sgt. Ldr. and Mrs. M. J. Cowie, 1228 McKenzie Street, suffered cuts to the scalp and possible injury to the collarbone but was reported in satisfactory condition at St. Joseph's Hospital at press time.

He was conscious throughout his ordeal. He managed a smile and told a reporter "I feel fine," as he was being carried down the mountainside on a stretcher.

SECOND FALL

Yesterday's fall was the second in just over three months at Mt. Finlayson.

A navy helicopter and the Langford volunteer fire department joined forces on April 15 to rescue Kenneth Peach, 13, 1118 Hillside, who plunged 30 feet down the sheer west face of the mountain.

A narrow ledge stopped Cowie's rolling fall down the rock bluff after he apparently lost his footing on the trail.

HEART SURGERY

The youth had undergone open heart surgery two or three years ago but it was not known whether this had any bearing on the mountain mishap.

James Cowie was one of 27 members of the junior branch of the Victoria Natural History Society who are camping in tents this week in Goldstream Park.

He and a number of other youngsters from the group had gone on a mountain climbing expedition led by prominent Victoria naturalist Freeman King.

STARTING DOWN

"We had been to the top and were starting down. We had gone about 200 feet when he slid on the face of a rock and fell 10 to 15 feet," said Mr. King.

Langford firemen said they thought the fall had been at least 20 feet.

"We moved him about 50 yards but because of his heart condition I thought it would be better to call for the firemen," Mr. King said.

RELAY MESSAGE

Mark Dames, a member of the party, was sent down the mountain as a runner to flag down a car and ask the driver to relay the message to the fire department.

Within minutes, eight men from the Langford volunteer fire department, with an ambulance, special rescue truck and chief's truck wheeled across the rustic wooden bridge towards the base of the Mt. Finlayson trail.

"They clawed their way up the muddy, slippery trail to the Cowie boy, eased him gently into the portable stretcher and started the hazardous trek downhill.

ROUGH GOING

The going was as rough in some spots that a rope tied to the stretcher was wrapped around tree trunks and paid off slowly as the stretcher bearers inched their way towards firmer ground.

"If I was 20 years younger, I'd have rigged a sling and brought him down myself," said the 73-year-old naturalist who has scaled Mt. Finlayson scores of times in his lifetime.

Negroes Rush Police Chief

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—About 50 Negroes mobbed Police Chief Wingate White and five policemen Tuesday in an attempt to desegregate the City Park swimming pool here.

Liberal Choice

Tory MPs shouted "You'll be sorry" when Prime Minister Pearson announced Tuesday he has named former Tory cabinet minister George Hees, above, who quit Diefenbaker cabinet in pre-election split, to the commission arranging Montreal 1967 world fair. Meanwhile, Ottawa reports said Liberals had accepted George Drew's offer to retire this fall as high commissioner in London.

Seafarers

Union Hits Back

MONTREAL (CP)—The Seafarers International Union (I.U.) demanded Tuesday that the federal government investigate the hearings of the Norris commission on maritime labor strife.

In a 10-page statement, the I.U. accused Mr. Justice T. G. Norris of violating the principles of justice during his eight-month investigation of violence and shipping disruptions on the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence Seaway.

FIRST REACTION

It was the first I.U. reaction to the Norris report, made public more than a week ago, which roundly condemned the actions of the I.U. and particularly Canadian President Hal C. Banks.

Mr. Justice Norris' chief recommendation was for a government trusteeship to take over management of marine unions until peace can be assured.

TOTALITARIAN

"The recommendations," the I.U. statement said, "with their alien philosophies, their provisions for arbitrary and totalitarian rule bear out, unfortunately, our anticipation. They constitute a serious threat to the liberty and economic well-being of Canadian citizens."
